Boy Involved In Parents' Death Remains A Mystery

By ARTHUR EVERETT
NEW YORK (AP)—In the children's ward of Bellevue Hospital on 30th Street off First Avenue there plays in outward contentment today a fair-haired blue-eyed little boy, his nose pugged, his face freckled, his features handsome.

He is Melvin Dean Nimer, Jr., eight years old last Feb. 5. Relatives and friends say he always got along well with others, caused little trouble. A teacher once wrote on his report card, "Dean is not easily offended and is very kind."

Melvin is not the normal little lad he appears. He may be one of the worst juvenile monsters in the recorded annals of crime. Or he may equally well be a sorely beset youngster, shocked by grief into a dreamworld of fantasy, where hideous imagery has replaced hideous reality.

Melvin has said he killed his mother and father with a kitchen knife as they slept. Some persons think he did. Others think he didn't. But probably nobody wants to believe him.

"In my opinion, he is a pathological liar and has killed no one," says one psychiatrist. "It is possible for a mentally disturbed child to commit such an act," says another.

Melvin's parents died of knife wounds Sept. 2 in their two-story rented home atop a hill at Clifton, Staten Island.

Two other children in the house Gregory, 2, and Jennifer, 5 months, slept undisturbed through the deaths of their father Dr. Melvin Nimer, and his brunette wife, Lou Jean, both 31.

Little Melvin's first story to police went something like this: He was put to bed by his mother after a family picnic on Labor Day. During the night, he was awakened by a man in a white mask bending over his bed, choking him. His screams brought his mother and father rushing from their bedroom. The prowler produced a knife, stabbed them both and fled the house. Melvin told a telephone operator what had happened. She notified police at 2:04 a. m.

Dr. Nimer died shortly after aid arrived. Mrs. Nimer lived 3 1/2 hours. Staten Island District Attorney John Braisted said that when police pressed her for a description of her assailant, she gasped, "like my husband."

That was taken to mean the prowler was about her husband's size—5 feet, seven inches, weighing about 160. From Melvin police drew a description of the man as wearing blue dungarees and a blue striped shirt.

WERE UTAH MORMONS
Dr. Nimer came to Staten Island from Phoenix, Ariz., last July. He was a surgeon at the U. S. public health service hospital at Stapleton, Staten Island. The Mormon family originally were from Orem, Utah.

There were several things that puzzled police as they ran down one lead after another in the case. How had the murderer prowled got into and out of the Nimer house? There were no signs of a forced entry. And what was the motive? Nothing had been stolen.

THEN SUSPECTS CHILD
The medical examiner's report demonstrated that the Nimers may have been stabbed in bed. And the report added: "These wounds could have been administered by almost anyone. Only a minimum amount of pressure was necessary, since the

FRONT—GERALD, MARGARET, RONALD; BACK—JOHN, FRANCIS, TANTON, HUBERT

S'side McNeill Family Boasts Unique Record

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN A record, perhaps unequalled in Canada or elsewhere, is unique with seven members of a well known Summerside McNeill family who all belong to the Summerside Branch of the Canadian Legion.

Not only are they members of the Summerside branch, but two are past presidents, and their total years of serving on the executive of the organization exceeds 25.

Gerald served with R.C.N.V.R. from 1943 on, having been too young to join the services with his brothers. He served on mid-Atlantic escort duty and overseas on the H.M.C.S. Springhill. Gerald is now employed with the postal department in Summerside.

Margaret was a nursing sister during the war attached to the Army, and served in Halifax in caring for the veterans, and also on the "Lettitia" which was used to bring war brides to Canada. Altogether, she made a total of 10 overseas trips on the "Lettitia". Margaret is now the supervisor of the obstetrical department at the Prince County Hospital.

Ronald Joseph is now an employee of the Department of Fisheries in Halifax, and resides in Rockingham. He joined the P.E.I. Highlanders on September 1, 1939, as a private, and by 1943 had been promoted to the rank of Captain. Ronald saw action with the West Nova Scotia regiment in North West Europe.

John William was a member of the Royal Canadian Navy, serving as supply assistant for three years. John served on the "Haida", "Truro", and "Bryfield". He was on the legion executive for one year, and has been secretary of the East Prince zone for several years. He is currently employed with the postal department in Summerside.

John was also been sports columnist for the Summerside Journal for the past 14 years.

Francis James joined the P.E.I. Highlanders on September 1, 1939, at the outbreak of the war, and later saw service in Italy with the Cape Breton Highlanders where he was wounded in August 1944.

He was discharged with the rank of Captain, and is now teaching science at Summerside High School.

"Peg" as he is affectionately known, was president of the Summerside branch in 1954, and has also served on the executive for 12 years.

W.C. Robertson, 58, died suddenly at the Prince County Hospital here Saturday.

A well known figure here, Mr. Robertson, was ill only a brief time. He was in good health until he suffered a heart attack three weeks ago.

Employed by Nicholson's Dry Cleaners for the past eight years, he is a native of Cavendish and for many years was prominent in the fox ranching industry both here and in the United States. He has resided in Summerside for the past 20 years.

He was a member of Trinity United Church and active in Church work.

Survivors include his wife, the former Blanche Harding of Norborne; his mother, Mrs. W. E. Robertson a son William Ernest of Ottawa; three sisters Janet, Mrs. Maurice Mill, Frances, Mrs. Elmer Offer and Thelie, Mrs. Alward Barlow, all of Summerside; three brothers, Maxwell, Summerside; Earl of Nechanic, N. J., and Herman, Long Island New York.

Funeral services will be held today at Trinity United Church at 2 p. m. Interment will be in Summerfield United Church Cemetery.

ed on his 40-acre property. It is this section that has been designated as the Province's first Certified Tree Farm.

"Clear cutting is all to generally practised in this Province," Mr. Gaudet notes. "This destroys even trees under two inches representing perhaps 15 years growth. What comes up then is strawberries and a few undesirable trees."

"If cut right, a woodlot will eventually come up into a desirable species," he said.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS
Earlier a committee was set up to encourage a tree farming program within the Province. It consists of Mr. Gaudet as chairman, Norman Black, of the Experimental Farm, Gordon Keer, representing the Scouts and Cubs; Claude Smith, representing Town Planning; and B.B. Jones, Bunsbury farmer.

The program is administered here by the Provincial Department of Agriculture and is sponsored nationally by the Canadian Forestry Association with headquarters in Montreal.

To obtain official certification as a tree farm, a woodlot must have been properly managed for at least three years.

Any private timberland owner who meets the Tree Farm standards can request to have his forest land certified as a Tree Farm.

INITIAL PROCEDURE
Application forms are available on request from any Tree Farm Committee or from the Forestry Division, Department of Agriculture, Charlottetown. Each application form should be accompanied with a rough sketch of the property indicating its location.

On receipt of the application, a Forester will: Check the application with one or more members of the Regional Committee; Cruise and prepare a type map of the property; Check the property on the ground with the owner; The Forester should, at this time, discuss management of the property with the owner and offer such advice as seems to be indicated.

Fill in the inspection, which includes a recommendation for certification.

No property shall be recommended unless the Forester is satisfied that the owner intends to follow a sound plan of management in the future.

The Forester and at least one member of a Tree Farm Committee will then visit the woodlot with the owner to decide on the merits of the lot and if acceptable, set a date and prepare plans for certification which can be carried out by the Regional Committee with one of the Foresters present.

The approved Tree Farms will be recorded and numbered consecutively in the "Prince Edward Island Tree Farm Record".
