 A NEW POLICE CLUB.

A year or two ago Dr. A. W. Nelson, of New London, Conn., U. S., a graduate of Harvard of the class of 1861, invented a new and humane kind of police club, which is likely to take the place of the old hardwood billy which has been in use so many years.

Here is what the New London Morning Telegraph says about it:
 "Some bright man on a Paterson paper has rightly named Dr. Nelson's humane police club the 'King of Clubs.' It is the King of police clubs, as it will do all that is expected of it without cracking the skull or marking for life the unfortunate, unruly prisoner who sees fit to make fight. The club also furnishes the officer ample protection and saves his clothes from being soiled by the blood of a prisoner who has been beaten into submission by a hard wood club.

As is generally known, this club has a wooden core enveloped with rubber, and is designed to save disfigurement of the prisoner without lessening the usefulness of the policeman's weapon of defence. Eight here in this city its advantage over the hard wood club has been demonstrated.

Not long ago a policeman attempted to arrest a man who was fighting drunk and the result was an assault on the officer. This policeman had a hard wood club and he was obliged to use it. He gave the prisoner several clips that made the blood flow freely from the wounds in the head but it did not seem to have any effect. The policeman feared serious results if he struck any harder blows with the club and the tussle was continued the blood from the prisoner besmearing the policeman's uniform quite badly, so much so that it had to be laid aside for an overhauling. With assistance the man, wounded and bleeding and covered with blood, was taken to the police station.

At about this same time another policeman who carried the Nelson club had an encounter with a dangerous colored man who was known as a burglar and an all round "bad man." As soon as the officer laid hands on the prisoner he commenced to fight and threatened to "slice" the officer. The rubber coated club of the doctor was brought into use. The first blow did not have much effect, but the next one, and not a very hard blow at that, brought the "bad man" to his knees and the officer did not have much trouble in getting the nippers on the fellow's wrist. He soon had him on the way to the station house and behind the bars in short order.

As has been announced a resolution presented by the chairman of the police committee was unanimously adopted at the meeting of the Court of Council Monday evening making the Nelson club the standard police club for this city.

FEBRUARY MAGAZINES.
 LIPPINCOTT'S.

The complete novel in the February issue of Lippincott's is "A Trooper Galahad," by Captain Charles King. It contains some close and vivid sketches of character and life at an army post in the south west; the warlike excitement is furnished by a prolonged pursuit of a dangerous band of outlaws. "His Last Appearance," by Jean Wright, and "A Literary Success," by Willis Irwin, are very brief tales. "Outwitting a Grizzly" is one of William Thompson's true stories of western adventure in old times—as far back as 1850. R. G. Robinson who is an authority on his chosen subject, supplies some information upon Florida, "The Land of the Winter Cucumber." Fakirs, adventurers, and swindlers of various kinds are the theme of Dora E. W. Spratt, in "How they Live on Nothing a Year." "The Poetry of Shelter," is one of Dr. Charles C. Abbot's very test nature papers. Robert Tinsol, in "Back from Altruria," set forth some of the attractions and drawbacks of Mr. Bellamy's millennial state. Samuel M. Warren writes briefly of "Odors," William Trowbridge Larned of "Insomnia," Ellen Duval of "Opportunity," and M. A. De Wolfe Howe of "The Other Side of Letters." The third paper of Dr. Theodore F. Wolfe's series, "Some Literary Shrines of Manhattan," deals with "The Latin Quarter and its Environs."

LADIES HOME JOURNAL.
 On the cover of the February Ladies' Home Journal Charles Dana Gibson, the illustrator, pictures the ideal American baby, an infant as interesting and lovable as its peerless older sister—the American girl. A reminiscent article on "With Washington in the Minuet," is appropriately given place in the February Journal. In it Mrs. Burton Harrison tells of the first inaugural ball, giving us a fascinating glimpse of society in this country at the dawn of the century. Further light is shed on Washington through an unpublished letter written by a guest at Mount Vernon a hundred years ago. It gives a close and interesting view of the home life of the great soldier and statesman. "The Flower Fetes of California" and "Getting Good Pictures of Children," are striking pictorial features, and "Inside of a Hundred Homes" is full of artistic suggestions for the practical housewife. Edward W. Bok protests against the niggardly contributions of a penny to church collections and gives the working girl advice as to where her best chances are to be found. Lillian Bell finds much to admire in the French women, and some despicable traits in the French men. She writes of both with customary frankness in her Paris letter. "The Inner Experiences of a Cabinet Member's Wife" increases in interest, as does Hamlin Garland's serial, "The Doctor," now nearing its conclusion. A valuable service is rendered by Mrs. S. T. Rorer, who tells "What Indigestion Really Means" in addition to her cooking lesson. Saint Valentine's Day is honored in verse and music a march—and the season's needs in dresses, jackets, etc., and the housewife's fancy in home decoration, furniture, etc., are fully anticipated. By the Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia. One dollar per year; ten cents per copy.

HARPER'S.
 A leading feature of the February Harper's is the first part of an article by George du Maurier, entitled "Social Pictorial Satire," which deals with the great satirist of Punch. The illustrations are from drawings by John Leech, one of which, "Mr. and Mrs. Caudie," is reproduced in color as the frontispiece. Other features are "Projects for an Isthmian Canal," by the Hon. David Turpie; "Stuttgart: The Modern City," by Elsie J. Allen, richly illustrated by Joseph Pennel; "Rau Barbary," a novelette of the turf, by George Hibbard; "Some Americans from Overseas," a description, by Kirk Munroe, fully illustrated, of his adventures among the Icelanders and Russians of North Dakota; "The Duc d'Annole and the Conde Museum," by Henri Bouchot, illustrated from rare and unpublished documents and prints; "Undercurrents in Indian Political Life," by F. H. Skrine; and "Recent Development of Musical Culture in Chicago," by George P. Upton.

DROPPED FROM THE SKY.

Thousands of Swallows Came Down From the Upper Air.
 Many birds, large and small, take their longer migratory flights at a great elevation. A very striking incident of such a journey through the upper air is narrated by a correspondent of the London Times. Flocks of swallows equally innumerable are to be seen in late summer and early autumn along the Atlantic coast of the United States, but it is a fortunate observer who catches them in the act of dropping from the sky.

It was a dark, dripping evening, and the thick mist bed on Chiswick eyot was covered with wet leaf. Between 5 and 6 o'clock immense flights of swallows and martins suddenly appeared above the island, arriving, not in hundreds, but in thousands and tens of thousands.

The air was thick with them, and their numbers increased from minute to minute. Part drifted above in clouds, twisting round like soot in a smoke wreath. Thousands kept sweeping just over the tops of the willows, skimming so thickly that the sky line was almost blotted out for the height of from three to four feet. The quarter from which these armies of swallows came was at first undiscoverable. They might have been hatched, like gnats, from the river.

In time I discovered whence they came. They were literally "dropping from the sky." The flocks were traveling at a height at which they were quite invisible in the cloudy air, and from minute to minute they kept dropping down into sight, and so perpendicularly to the very surface of the river or of the eyot.

One of the flocks dropped to the lawn on the river bank on which I stood. Without exaggeration I may say that I saw them fall from the sky, for I was looking upward and saw them when first visible as descending specks. The plunge was perpendicular till within ten yards of the ground.

Soon the high flying crowds of birds drew down and swept for a few minutes low over the willows, from end to end of the eyot, with a sound like the rush of water in a hydraulic pipe. Then by a common impulse the whole mass settled down from end to end of the island upon the osiers. The bushes in the center of the eyot were black with swallows, like the black blight on beans.

Next morning, at half past 6 o'clock, every swallow was gone. In half an hour's watching not a bird was seen. Whether they went on during the night or started at dawn I know not. Probably the latter, for Gilbert White once found a heath covered with such a flock of migrating swallows, which did not leave till the sun dispelled the mists.
