Two Rotary Club Members Describe Occupations

At the weekly luncheon meeting of Rotary held in the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday, two new members complied with an obligation to speak on the classification under which they were granted club membership.

Lee Lazurek, representing dry goods and general merchandise as manager of Woolworth's Ltd, stressed the opportunities available to young men in the variety field of merchandise.

Ralph E. Jenkins, president of Jenkins Transport limited sharing ownership with his son Paul since 1961, gave a comprehensive outline of the several phases of that type of business with contacts throughout Canada and the United States.

In speaking on the growth and development of Woolworth's Ltd Mr. Lazurek said. "If our company had remained with five and 10 lines it probably would have ceased to exist long ago. But we do exist and continue to expand. We are continually up-grading our lines.

MANAGER IN 6 YEARS

"Minimum requirements for employment are junior matriculation, ambition and a willingness to work and move wherever needed. With our training program, such a young man could be managing his own store in five or six years", the speaker stated.

Starting in the stock room for a period of approximately one year, advancement is made to assistant manager with progressively added duties and responsibilities designed to prepare for full managerial duty he said.

"Woolworth's is over a billion dollar business with more than 3,100 stores in the United States, Canada, Mexico, the British Isles and Germany", the speaker said.

Mr. Lazurek was born and educated in Montreal. He joined the Woolworth Company in 1953 and came to Charlottetown as manager in 1962.

Mr. Jenkins, in explaining 'the transport and storage business, said, "storage of household goods is operated on a standard laid down by the Canadian Warehousing Association with central office in Toronto. This group confers often with the tri-services of the department of national defence to set up standards and suggest tariffs to apply to the movement of household goods.

"Household goods storage has become big business since World War Two when the building boom expanded and people began to store their household goods while building new homes.

"The tremendous amount of national defence moving in connection with troops serving overseas and to new postings in Canada requires a large volume of space for temporary and long term storage." the speaker said.

Local and Maritime Provinces moving is handled by vans of the local company. Long distance moves are handled by Allied Van Lines which is a group of private owners who join together to prevent duplication of operations over long distances, Mr. Jenkins explained.

"In addition to warehousing and trucking household goods, we represent two forwarding companies and unload and deliver approximately 20 tons of freight every day to points in the city and province", the speaker said.

Both speakers were introduced by chairman J.C. Montgomery and thanked by co-chairman Elmer McRae who presented each with a suitable gift from the club.

President Andrew Likely announced the return of Rev. Harry Somers following treatment in hospital at Halifax. Regret was expressed at the illness of W.R Jenkins, confined to his home.

Visiting Rotarians were: Edward Byrone, QC, Bathurst, N.B. Dr. William Drichan, Bangor, Me.; Earl MacEachern, Summerside. Guests were: Glendon Eddy, Bathurst, N.B.; Ova Hansen and Edgar Alberts, city.

Nat. Director Speaks At Jr. Red Cross Annual

Some 60 representatives of 16 high schools, including 11 teacher - sponsors, attended the eighth Annual High School Red Cross Conference held Saturday at the Basilica Recreation Centre in Charlottetown.

David Peppin of Kensington Regional High School chaired the day's proceedings which included an address given by Ralph E. Wendeborn of Toronto, national director of the Canadian Junior Red Cross, who was introduced to the gathering by Ipbigenie Arsenault, provincial Red Cross commissioner.

Mr. Wendeborn challenged the young people to action through training and urged them to seek first for opportunities to give service in their own communities, and then to look wider by assisting with various international projects which will promote understanding among the young people of the world.

He described one of these international undertakings of the Canadian Junior Red Cross which is currently underway in conjunction with the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations in Khartoum in the Sudan. There a nutritionist and an agriculturist are at work on an experimental self-help project involving the students of 440 schools who are being taught to grow fruit and vegetables, and to raise poultry.

STUDY IN CANADA

Mr. Wendeborn said that next year, four young people from this Sudanese area will be brought to Canada for further study along these lines and then work the following year in their own country with the two Canadian representatives before taking over this project on their own. The Sudanese schools involved in this plan have Junior Red Cross branches and will carry on an exchange of correspondence, albums, handicrafts, and so on with Canadian Red Cross groups to make this project educationally complete for all participants he said.

Mr. Wendeborn's talk was followed by a short film entitled "100 Years Young" which tells the Red Cross story from the time of the birth of the Society in 1863 up to its present day programs.

Judy MacKenzie of Summerside, gave a resume of her impressions of the Red Cross leadership training centre which she attended this past summer, along with David Fitzpatrick of Birchwood in Charlottetown, Alan Gallant of Stella Maris Regional High in North Rustico described in detail the activities carried out at the Atlantic Provinces Red Cross Training Centre which he attended with 10 other P.E.I. representatives at Acadia University in Wolfville during the past summer.

Discussion groups brought forth many questions which were answered by Mr. Wendeborn in connection with the functioning of High School Red Cross.

After lunch and recreation period during which some of those in attendance took advantage of the opportunity to bowl, dance or utilize the gym facilities, a representative from each of the high schools gave highlights of their past year's activities which revealed the great variety of activities accomplished by the young people.

Dr. K. A. Parker, chairman of the Junior Red Cross advisory committee for the province, spoke to the conference in connection with community services.

Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore, director of Red Cross water safety and first aid, spoke to the group of "Training for Service" through taking advantage of the first aid, home care and water safety courses provided by Red Cross. She explained the procedure to be followed in arranging for these courses.

Rev. Sr. St. Brigid, teacher-sponsor of Stella Maris Regional High School Red Cross Council expressed the thanks of the conference to Mrs. W. W. Reid, director of Junior Red Cross for P.E.I. for arranging an "enjoyable and beneficial day."

Junior Red Cross Director Concludes Workshops Here

Albert Fogarty, principal of Souris Regional High School, was the chairman for the Red Cross Teachers' Workshop held at St. Mary's Hall in Souris for teachers in the Souris and Montague convention areas, Harold Hynes school supervisor, and Mrs. Hynes were guests.

Ipbigenie Arsenault, provincial Red Cross commissioner, introduced Ralph E. Wendeborn of Toronto, national director of the Junior Red Cross, who was the feature speaker for the occasion. In his talk Mr. Wendeborn, who holds his master's degree in public health and with his bachelor of education is also a "health educator", pointed out the many ways in which the Junior Red Cross program provides the teacher with a useful tool for actual learning experiences in all the subjects taught from the elementary classroom through the high school grades.

During the discussion period which followed Mr Wendeborn's address, the teacher-sponsors of Junior Red Cross formulated questions in connection with the program which were answered by the national director and Mrs. W. W. Reid, director of Junior Red Cross for P.E.I., who organized the workshops.

Badges of service, and the accompanying citations, were awarded to Margaret Lowery of Cardigan Head; Mrs. Anne Taylor of Dundas, and Mrs. Kathryn Christian of Launching, for 15 or more years of dedicated leadership to Junior Red Cross. It was explained that many more teachers from the area were deserving of this recognition but that only those who had filled in the required form were being given these awards this year.

The thanks of the gathering were expressed by Daniel MacDonald of St. Peter's Bay who is the teacher-sponsor of the JRC at Morell Regional High School.

This was the fourth and last of the teachers' workshops held during the week of Mr. Wendeborn's visit to this province.
