The Orange and the Green.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 5. Yesterday at Bay Roberts there was another furious Orange outbreak. New York Redemptorist Fathers holding a mission there were besieged and imprisoned in their dwellings. An Orange arch was raised near the threshold of the church and hundreds of armed Orangemen paraded the streets. When intelligence reached St. John's the United States Consul demanded from Governor Glover protection for the lives and liberty of United States citizens. Concert at Mount Stewart.

The New Year Concert at this place, under the auspices of the Debating and Temperance Societies, gathered a full house, notwithstanding an inclement change in the weather. The opening address was delivered by J. M. Davis, who had been invited from Charlottetown for the occasion. The audience listened with rapt attention, and he was heartily applauded.

Mr. Horace McEwen was master of a well-prepared programme, which took over two hours in rendering. The concert over, the committee invited those who had taken part in the entertainment to a well-prepared supper, after which a jolly good time was kept up till the "wee sma' hours o' morn'g," when, amid the heartiest wishes for a Happy New Year, they separated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Complaint.

SIR,—Last evening the Charlottetown Post Office was closed at fifteen minutes before ten o'clock, when the Time Table, which the Postmaster issues, distinctly states that it shall remain open until ten o'clock. What is the reason, may I enquire, for this departure from the regulations which caused myself and others who were expecting mails great inconvenience? Is Mr. Brecken the Postmaster, or are the clerks in charge of the office and Mr. Brecken a subordinate? Yours, &c., CITIZEN.

Steeple Again.

SIR,—I notice in your issue of the 3rd inst., a communication signed "Steeple Cleydon." This individual has, upon several occasions, severely criticised the people of this province, and it would be well to consider whether or not he is qualified to do so.

There has been much speculation and many surmises, as to whom "Steeple Cleydon" really is. The non de plume sounds to me very much like the name of a quiet spot in England, not famed for beautiful scenery or the production of eminent men. It may have been "Steeple Cleydon's" early home. If so, it is to be hoped that the women of that locality stand morally higher than his remarks would lead one to suppose his associates do. It is a well known fact that men deprived of the beneficial influence of the gentler sex become to a certain extent depraved. He may be one of those; and if so, his moral vision is not sufficiently clear, to enable him to pass judgment upon others.

He evidently wishes to be taken for an educated man for he pedantically writes of pronunciation. But if his education were as it should have been, and if he possesses such marked ability as he believes he does, he should not now be in a subordinate position writing criticisms upon his superiors but far advanced on the road to fame.

"Straws show how the wind blows," as he learnedly tells us. If we judge him by trifles he is right indeed. He wishes people to believe him a gentleman, but we look in vain for the token by which a gentleman is ever known. He may certainly occupy a gentleman's position, but it does not necessarily follow that he is one. Placed beyond his sphere, he oversteps the bounds which birth and nature marked out for him, and it is meet that his presumption and vanity should receive a check if he alters not his style before writing again. M.

The Catholic Union of London, Eng., have arranged to give a great banquet to Lord Ripon, ex-viceroy of India, on the 10th of February next, after his return from the Orient.
