Religion and Life

RELIGION IS FOR LIFE

During the meeting of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam the chairman of one section was Bishop Lillje of Germany. He is now president of the Lutheran Church Federation, and in that capacity he visited America this year. In June he addressed a conference of young people, and told them that he could urge upon them no more important lesson than preparing to meet emergencies as calm, courageous followers of Jesus Christ.

The Ecumenical Press Service report is as follows:—"He had to prepare to meet death itself when he was a prisoner of the Nazis. 'I found it the most important and valuable lesson of my life,' he declared, 'to be prepared to die. In those days my constant prayer was that my knees would not let me down at the last moment, but that I would be able to witness to the dignity of Christian life by my calmness and steadfast courage.'"

* * *

So many people in our times have been insisting that "religion is for life, not for death." This may have been a necessary reaction against a past emphasis on the idea that to be prepared for death was life's chief aim. It is a safe guess that people who talk in this way have never faced death as an immediate possibility. But it is folly thus to set life and death over against each other. Life is one. The Christian salvation is for life and for death and for what is beyond death. Man is immortal and his life is one and the same through all its changing phases.

It is here that Christ's teaching touches our human need most closely. He said to a friend in the first anguish of bereavement:—"I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live, and whoever lives and believes in me shall never die." Life is the main thought here: resurrection is only its final stage. All through His teaching, Jesus affirmed that eternal life is the present possession of those who believe in Him. Its continuity is unbroken; for "he who lives and believes in Me shall never die" "What we call death," wrote Bishop Westcott, "is not an interruption of being but a change in the mode of being."

* * *

As I, write the butterflies flit from leaf to leaf in the sunshine, brightening everything around them. Its life passes through a number of stages and conditions. There is, first, the insect egg, then the caterpillar, then the chrysalis when life seems to stop but in which the greatest change of all takes place; then the butterfly. But it is the same life in unbroken continuity through all these changes, and its full glory appears only in its final form. So it is with the divine life in the soul of man.

There is the new birth, the awakening of the soul to its divine environment, then follows the Christian life and service in the world, then death when life disappears but under which the greatest change takes place; then the resurrection, when, as St. John puts it, Christ shall appear, and we shall be like Him for we shall see Him as He is.

It is in this sense that religion is for life—life in all its fullness, life with the long outlook. As Longfellow puts it: "There is no death; what seems so its transition." It was with this in view that Christ said: "I am come that they may have life, and have it abundantly." It has been said that a boy's religion should be different from his grandfather's; that is, it should fit into a boy's interests and aspirations and meet head-on on a boy's needs. But the youth, wisely advised and ready to listen to advice, always has before him "the kind of man he wants to be" The way he uses the opportunities of youth will determine thse strength and resources of his manhood and his fitness to grapple with the problems that will meet him in the type of work he chooses.

We all know lots of boys, as mischievous and full fun as any in the land, who nevertheless, take the long view of life, who accept (perhaps grumblingly) the discipline that requires them to subject their love of pleasure to the education and training that only youth can acquire, and who move steadily forward to the objective they have made their own. It has been said that pleasure is like your shadow: Pursue it, and it will flee from you; turn from it, and it will follow like a dog at your heels. The young person with a purpose, can have more real fun, and lasting enjoyment than the one who makes pleasure his god.

* * *

It is just the same with the long view of life which Jesus took—the outlook which reaches into the eternities. It is the vitality that is overflowing because conscious of a relationship that nothing we know can break. It provides all the pleasure that we are capable of enjoying, but that pleasure is an effect, not a cause—a means to an end, but not life's chief end. That means efficiency on one's chosen work. It means using the world to the full, but without abusing it. A couple of young men built a fire-place in our summer cottage, and did it in such a spirit and with such superb efficiency that they lifted our whole ideal of ability and fidelity in service. In the long view of life, no service is "humble"; everything that man does for man can serve the eternal.

Each individual embodies a distinctive concept in the mind of God, and God wants to work with us in working out to perfection. God cannot afford to let it die; it is something of Himself. He is committed to your immortality but He needs your co-operation, and you can work with Him and toward His ends in everything you do.

MARGATE THANKSGIVING — The annual Harvest Thanksoffering was observed at Margate United Church on Sunday morning, October 11, when a bountiful offering of fruits and vegetables bore silent tribute to an abundant harvest. Greenery and berries enhanced the bountiful and beautifully arranged display of gladioli, dahlias and other fall flowers. Speaking from the text, "Upon the First Day of the week let every one of you Lay by Him in Store, as God hath Prospered Him.", the minister, the Rev. S. H. Haslam, B. D., pointed out that altho Thanksgiving is a day to give thanks to God, on the first day of every week it is good to lay by a tribute to God. The gift to God should be given first, not that which is left over. Summing up, he said, "Let us give our first to God and our best to God. The hymns chosen for this service were, "Come Ye Thankful People, Come", "Sing to the Lord of the Harvest", and "Come Children, Join to Sing, Hallelujah!" The flowers, fruit and vegetables were donated to the Prince County Hospital, Summerside.—Bur.

McCormick-McGee Wedding

Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, Ottawa, was the scene of a pretty wedding on September 12, when Margaret Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. McGee, Saint Mary's Road, P. E. I. was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to William, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCormick, Vankleek Hill, Ont. Reverend Father La Rose celebrated the Nuptial Mass and also officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Emmett Moore, Montreal, and was attended by her two sisters, Mary of Sturgeon, P. E. I. and Agnes of Montreal. The groom was supported by his brother James McCormick, Ottawa.

Messrs. Bernard Ryan and Edward Moore ushered the guests.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white nylon net over satin with a three-tier skirt, fitted bodice and long pointed sleeves with a shoulder length veil and a crown of pearls and rhinestones. She carried a white prayerbook with a bouquet of red roses and streamers.

The bridesmaid, Agnes, wore a pale blue nylon net over taffeta gown with matching headdress and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The maid of honor, Mary, wore a pink nylon net over taffeta matching headdress, and wore a corsage of white roses.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion a navy costume with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. James McCormick, Ottawa. The bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom.

A toast to the bride was proposed by Father La Rose to which the groom briefly and graciously responded.

For a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and points of interest in U. S. A., the bride changed to a suit of Coronation blue with navy accessories. The happy couple will reside in Vankleek Hill, Ont.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Joseph B. McGee, Saint Mary's Road, P. E. I.; Mary McGee Sturgeon, P. E. I.; Agnes McGee, Louis MacKenzie, Emmett Moore, Verna Chisholm, Zella Mercereau, Anne Bowes, Christelle MacKenzie, all of Montreal.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. CALVIN B. CAMERON

The residents of Head of Hillsborough and vicinity were saddened to learn of the passing of one of their most respected citizens, Mrs. Calvin Cameron, nee Euphemia Lockett Douglas, in her 76th year, on June 27.

"Phemie", as she was familiarly known, was born at Cherry Hill in 1877, daughter of the late Benjamin Douglas and his wife Jemima Coffin where she resided until her marriage in 1901.

Being possessed of a quiet unassuming manner, her love of home and deep interest in community and church affairs endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. She will long be remembered for her sterling principles and upright character, but it is in the home that the loss is most keenly felt.

She leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother three sons and three daughters: Merrill of Billerica, Mass., Louis of Head of Hillsborough, Edith, Mrs. Lorne MacMillan of West Covehead, Etta, Ernest and Beatrice at home; also seven grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. Henry Coffin of Mt. Stewart, Mrs. Everett Anderson of South Boston, Mass., and Mrs. Frank Farquharson of Canavoy. Her husband predeceased her three years ago.

Her funeral, which was largely attended, was held from her late residence on June 30. Service at the house and grave was conducted by Rev. Mr. MacNaughton of Mt. Stewart Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Cameron was a member, assisted by Rev. Mr. Byers of Mt. Stewart United Church. Hymns sung were "Unto The Hills", "Nearer My God To Thee", and "Rock of Ages". The pallbearers were Geddie Douglas, Ralph Coffin, Melvin Jardine, George MacKenzie, John McEachern and James McDonald. Interment was in West St. Peters cemetery.

Floral tributes were as follows:

Pillow: Family.

Crescents: Sister Etta, Louise and Everett, Bessie, Frank, Ernest, Roy and Eleanor, Head of Hillsborough Women's Institute.
