MARY HAWORTH

Bar Poor Hunting Ground or Meaningful Romance

Dear Mary Haworth: I am hoping you may shed new light on the age-old question: how does girl meet boy? Also I hope you can clear up a few other matters for me.

Is it socially acceptable for a girl, 21, accompanied by another female, to visit a Manhattan bar - restaurant occasionally, for a few drinks after work and opportunity to look at the men? I have in mind the better lounges, where many men and women congregate.

My mother thinks it is terrible. She considers it a nick-up offer and I am inclined to agree. I feel that unescorted girls don't belong there. Yet many are there, and takes for granted, I find.

Also is resort areas along the East Coast, where many young people take summer vacations, it is customary for girls to go casually dressed into bars and lounges and talk with strange men. In fact this is routine recreation after a day on the beach. Is this correct?

I've been laughed at by my girl friends for voicing objections to going such places. Yet in resort towns there are no organized social mixers, which leaves only the bars as hospitality centers.

Are dances the dateless woman's only conventional means of meeting eligible males? I have attended many, only to find them dull, fruitless and expensive. Lots of men don't dance and shun such events.

If the good life were already in your grasp, if you were in possession of heart's content, the prospect of loosing in bars wouldn't beckon you at all. Rather you would see the setup for what it is, namely, an escapist environment where drinks is a tranquilizer, betraying the habitue into defeatist drifting, rather than putting him or her on the path of productive activity.

Smart girls catch good husbands by devising a pre-married life that includes eligible men in it, as workday associates if not as social playmates in the preliminary rounds.

Thus, for example at your tender age, 21, it might be to enroll in the Peace Corps, which is made up of top quality young men, and a few women, mostly. Or you might investigate employment opportunities with reputable firms, or the burgeoning anti-property program, which likewise is recruiting the support of the nation's ablest young thinkers and doers.

About dances as a means of meeting eligible men: I think everything depends upon who gives the party, and why. Public dance halls, operated for profit, should be out of bounds for reputable girls who would have to go alone.

Dances staged by the Y.W.C.A. or conservative church groups, for the benevolent purpose of providing some social life otherwise isolated young people under social auspices, are probably better suited to your general purposes, M.H.

Tomato Roquefort Salad Gives Menu Royal Note

THE AVERAGE homemaker walks 7 miles a day rushing about her home duties. The air-line hostess is taught to save miles of walking. One way to do this is use a well-sealed cart or tray - wagon. That's one reason why she manages to look smiling and rested.

If hours of overtime for the main course at a home luncheon or evening party are prepared ahead and the wagon wheeled in to save serving steps, this would give a lift to home hostesses.
