For that for which there is a use. There never is a good excuse... Old Mother Nature. Paddy the Beaver and Mrs. Paddy are, as you know, very much at home in the water. In fact, they are very much more at home in the water than they are on the land. They are wonderful swimmers. They swim at the surface with their heads out of water and they swim fast. They use their tails, their big, thick, flat tails, the way a motorboat makes use of its propeller. At the same time they use their big, powerful, webbed hind feet to help drive them through the water. You know their hind feet are webbed between the toes just as a Duck's feet are webbed. And Paddy and Mrs. Paddy are just as good swimmers under water.

"You don't know what you're talking about," he squeaked. So it is very difficult for them to understand how anyone can be afraid of the water; for anyone can be afraid to try to swim. They had not supposed that there was anyone who couldn't swim if they tried. Now Timmy the Flying Squirrel had declared that he couldn't swim. "He is a 'frady," said Mrs. Paddy to Paddy. "Of course he can swim if he tries. Why, our

R. C. A. F. Widows Compensated

MONTREAL (CP)—The widow of two RCAF sergeants killed with six other airmen in a crash near Dorval Airport here in May, 1954, have been awarded $31,150 and legal costs in a court settlement announced Thursday. The compensation was awarded to Mrs. Irene Paradis of Montreal and Mrs. Muriel MacDonald of Cobourg, Ont., widows of sergeants Francois H. Paradis and William L. MacDonald. The plane, with a crew of three and five passengers going on leave, was bound from Chatham, N.B., to Trenton, Ont., and crashed attempting to make an unscheduled landing at Dorval. Pensions were denied Mrs. Paradis and Mrs. MacDonald on grounds their husbands were not on duty at the time of the accident. They originally sought $105,000 in a damage claim. The crash occurred about midnight of the day the crown Liability Act came into force May 15, 1954, making the crown responsible for the negligence of its servants and providing the grounds on which the two widows sued.

who had been listening. "You can swim, but you can't fly. Flitter can fly but he can't swim. It is no more silly than it is for you to think that Timmy and I can swim with our legs tied together," squeaked Flitter. "But your legs are not tied together," cried Mrs. Paddy. "Oh yes, they are," retorted Flitter. "Mine are tied together by my wings and Timmy's legs are tied together by those flaps which he can spread out in order to make his long jumps. I wish you would tell me how either of us can swim like that." "That is true," said Timmy

Say Commercial Cemeteries Should Be Under Utilities

Canadian Press Staff Writer By BOB TRIMBEE BRANDON, Man. (CP)—The Anglican Church of Canada's executive council Thursday urged provincial governments to place under the jurisdiction of their public utilities boards cemeteries established for profit. The council, here for its annual meeting, appeared to govern following a report by a committee established in 1955 to examine methods of operation and economic structures of all types of cemeteries. The committee said so-called memorial gardens - type cemeteries have entered the scene in almost all large Canadian centres. It said the cemetery companies escape from provincial regulations of cemetery operations because the regulations do not apply to private companies incorporated under the Companies' Act. "Land is bought and a blitzkrieg-type sales campaign begins," featuring a "pre-package deal, largely on a time-payment

Revision Of Electric Rates Is Explained To Council

Explaining the recent revision of electric rate charges experienced by some commercial establishments in Summerside, Dr. H.E. Clark, chairman of the Summerside Town Council outlined these reasons at a meeting of the council on Monday night. After a detailed explanation of the principles of rate making, Dr. Clark went on to say that due to the apparent high cost per kilowatt hour of energy as presently in effect, a new study of fixed charges, production costs, depreciation rates, etc., has been undertaken with the thought of arriving at more equitable and realistic electric rates for all classes of electric customer. To correctly divide the present use of power between the domestic and power customers, it becomes necessary to measure the connected loads of all customers in the latter classes. This job has been undertaken and in many cases it has been found that additional electric appliances have been installed in

Parking Baby Carriages Is Real Problem

LONDON (Reuters)—A debate on baby carriage parking lots is raging in the letters column of The Times. The subject was brought up two days ago by Dina Dobson of Bristol, who wrote that prams—perambulators, as they are called in Britain—often are too big to be taken into smaller stores and it is unsafe to leave a scrambling baby outside unattended. The problem is magnified in Britain, where supermarkets are rare, because mothers have to visit several stores each day. It is further magnified because the British way of keeping up with the Joneses often means having not a bigger car, but a bigger and frillier pram. If one of these is left on a narrow town or village sidewalk, passing prams must be wheeled into the street. A good and cheap solution, Mrs. Dobson said, is to appropriate part of an auto parking lot for prams, with an attendant to mind the babies. But today her solution was challenged by C. M. Barlow, of Hassocks, who wanted to know what an untrained attendant would do "A) with a baby in distress, B) in heavy rain, C) if

Bag Duck At 4,000 Feet High

WINNIPEG (CP)—The first duck of the 1957 season, bagged at 4,000 feet, has been claimed by the pilots of an RCAF Dakota returning to Winnipeg from a night navigation trip. FO Gino Muzzatti, 24, of Halifax, and FO Jim McCallum of Medicine Hat, Alta., said a high-flying mallard crashed through the windshield of their plane. Both pilots were cut slightly by flying glass. The Dakota was flying at 170 miles an hour at the time. An emergency was declared but a normal landing was carried out. The lower operator facetiously requested the number of their hunting licence and whether or not the bag had been taken over a stubble field since the regular season was not yet open. A pram park would be an excellent spot for abandoning unwanted babies, Barlow added. Mrs. Dobson also noted that when a false fire alarm cleared a Bristol department store, 17 occupied baby carriages were found unattended. Twelve of the mothers were shopping in other stores. Five were at the movies.
