True Success Story By F. H. MacArthur

The name of Florence Nightingale is so well known throughout the world that little can be added in a brief sketch such as this. A remarkable child, Florence was born in Florence, Italy, in 1820. She died in 1910, after a brilliant career that made her famous.

As a child she became interested in caring for dumb animals, and on one occasion, while yet a very small girl, she came upon a dog with a broken leg, took the animal to her home and nursed it back to health.

At an early age, Florence Nightingale became deeply interested in hospital work, visited the Chief Military Hospitals in Europe and studied the nursing systems. Her work during the Crimean War brought her to the attention of the authorities and marked her as an outstanding woman philanthropist of that day.

Miss Nightingale found many faults with hospital conditions as they existed in those days and she promptly volunteered to organize a group of nursing sisters at Scutari. The offer was accepted by the Government and within one week she was on her way to the East, where she rendered valuable assistance to the sick and wounded soldiers, by her incessant labors in nursing and in hospital reform.

Soon she became known as "The Lady with the Lamp" and her mere presence in the sick wards brought sunshine and hope into the lives of the sick and wounded.

So diligently did this noble woman perform her duties that a great physical and mental strain followed. Yet, notwithstanding her long hours of confinement to sick rooms, she continued to give her assistance in the interest of hospital reform and for her knowledge she was consulted during the Civil War.

Miss Nightingale published notes on hospitals, notes on general nursing, notes on the sanitary state of the army in India and Life or Death in India.

Among those who take care of the young, sick or infirm, the name of Florence Nightingale will ever shine out like a bright star, and the system of sending trained nurses to the theatre of war originated with this remarkable person.

The first class of nurses to graduate in the U.S.A. was sent from Bellevue Training School in New York City in the year 1872. Organizations for military nursing are now common to all civilized countries.

That Body Of Yours By James W. Barton, M.D.

While the medical treatment of the common form of rheumatism (rheumatoid arthritis) has been and still is acetylsalicylic acid (aspirin), the use of heat in various forms is of great help in stimulating the circulation which carries away waste products from the joint or other tissues affected.

In England, where rheumatism is most common, the heat treatment has always been used so it is not surprising to learn that a constant steady heat is now applied to rheumatic patients by means of an electric blanket.

In The Lancet, Dr. E. Frankel reports the use of an electric blanket.

Morning Smile

The lawyer was irritated. He felt that he was getting nowhere. He whirled on the defendant in court. "Madam!" he shouted, trying to intimidate the woman, "while you were taking the dog for a walk, did you stop at any place?"

"Sir," said the woman quietly, "did you ever take a dog for a walk in this town and he never stopped at a light pole or by the side of a house?"

Mature Men, Women Make Happiest Marriages

In a scientific study of marriage it has been found that middle-age marriages are happier than those contracted earlier in life. This indicates that intelligence goes farther than romance in making marriage a success.

This conclusion is amply borne out by the fact that it is a matter of common observation that, taking them by and large, widows and widowers make the best wives and husbands, and that second marriages rarely fail in the divorce court. This is true even of divorced people, for those who could not get along with their first mates seem able to get along with almost any sort of mate when they marry again.

Of course, there is a glamour about young love that elderly affection never possesses. Twenty is the time for circling wings and star dust, and the chanting of the angel choir that forty never sees or hears; but it is also the time of weakening from a dope dream, the time of mid-slipping and bitter vituperation, and if the old do not get the kick out of marriage that the young do, they also escape many of its bruises.

ELIMINATION RISKS There are many reasons why late marriages should be, as a rule, Continued on page 9

Robertson - Bagg Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. David Ralph Robertson of Sudbury photographed following their recent marriage at First Baptist Church, Oshawa, Ontario. The bride is Evelyn Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bagg of Oshawa and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robertson of East Royalty. -Photo Hutchison Studio.

Pink roses, delphiniums in shades of blue with white hydrangeas formed the floral background in First Baptist Church, Oshawa, for a wedding at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Miss Evelyn Louise Bagg of Oshawa was united in marriage with Mr. David Ralph Robertson of Sudbury. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bagg of Oshawa, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robertson of East Royalty, P.E.I.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Jarvis Street, Oshawa, which was colorful with arrangements of summer flowers. To receive the guests the bride's mother wore a dress of navy sheer, a picture hat of navy taffeta, matching accessories and a corsage of deep pink roses and white sweet peas. Mrs. Arthur Robertson of Sudbury, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, who assisted in wearing a white faille dress with a matching bolero, black and white straw hat and a corsage of tallisun roses. Pink tulle and sweet peas formed the setting for the three tier wedding cake created with pink and white sweet peas and flanked with white tapers centering the bride's table which was laid with a hand made ivory lace cloth.

The Reverend R. F. Willson offered Grace and later proposed a toast to the bride which was responded to by the bridegroom, who in turn proposed a toast to the matron of honor and responded to by the best man. The bride's father also voiced his good wishes to the newly wedded couple.

Serving the wedding party and the guests were Miss Irene Canfield, Miss Barbara Sleeman, Miss Betty Joyce and Miss Eleanor MacDonald.

During the reception telegrams of best wishes were received from the parents of the bridegroom, East Royalty, P.E.I., Mrs. Keith Champion and family and Mr. Wilfred Robertson and family of Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson left in the early evening by motor for points in the United States and will also visit the bridegroom's parents in Prince Edward Island.

For travelling the bride wore a street length dress of English lace over navy taffeta accented with navy taffeta at the waistline, a navy velvet cloche hat with veil, navy accessories and a corsage of red roses. On their return they will reside in Sudbury. Before leaving the bride threw her bridal bouquet which was caught by Miss Joy Bennett.

Modern Etiquette By Roberta Lee

Q. Is one always supposed to give one's reason when declining an invitation? A. Of course, it isn't absolutely necessary. But to decline an invitation without giving some reason would sound a little abrupt and might give the impression that you do not care to continue the friendship. It is a little more courteous to advance some reason, and probably the best is a "previous engagement."

Q. What apology should a person offer if he accidentally brushes against another person on the street, or in some public conveyance? A. "I am sorry," or "I beg your pardon."

Q. When a man is assisting a woman out of an automobile, should he take her hand or her elbow? A. He should assist her by placing his hand gently under her elbow.

ELLEN'S DIARY By An Island Farmer's Wife

Evening is here. Now the day rests for a moment while the soft mantle of dusk is being spread on the far hills. Already the light of the afterglow is fading though a brightness still remains to bless the nearer countryside in a lovely benediction which sets its seal to July's last week. The birds, come now to the end of their evening, enhanced for us, beautiful and moving as it always is, by the added notes of a thrush. These are sweetly and repeatedly and quite as bewitching as an old memory that is precious. Blackie, the dog, a useless likeable fellow pads by this old stone doorstep, lonely perhaps for the small ones who have accompanied him and made his life more lively in recent days.

The three have gone now, grand-daughter to her nightly bath while Jamie must catch the next-to-the-last trip of the hay-wagons to a far field, when he must betake himself and his brother home. "You should have seen them, Ellen," James commented since "hand in hand they struck out from there along the fields for home." The one a tallish, grave lad, the other dempling - smaller and stocky and brown. And Continued on page 9

How Can I!!! By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I make use of apricot seeds? A. The kernels of apricot seeds impart a delicious flavor when used in the same manner as nuts, in cake, cookies, and candy. Q. How can I prevent catching the pocket of my kitchen apron on various things and tearing it? A. The next time you are making kitchen aprons, sew the pockets on the inside instead of the outside. This is far more practical. Q. How can I prevent sliced bananas from turning dark? A. When slicing bananas use a silver knife and sprinkle the slices with lemon juice.

Better English By B. C. Williams

1. What is wrong with this sentence? "The looker-ons applauded the men who had swam the river." 2. What is the correct pronunciation of "vindictory"? 3. Which one of these words is misspelled? Judgment, achievement, condiment, prerogative. 4. What does the word "insurgent" (adjective) mean? 5. What is a word beginning with "s" that means "full of contempt"?

ANSWERS 1. Say: "The lookers-on applauded the men who had swum the river." 2. Pronounce vin-dik-a-to-ri, all i's as in it, unstressed, o as in too, principal accent on first syllable. 3. Achievement, 4. Rising in opposition to authority; rebellious. "The insurgent party attempted to overthrow the government." 5. Scornful.

Meat Thermometer The meat thermometer which is used for roasting should never be touched while hot with a wet cloth or placed on a cold surface, as this is liable to break the glass. When cool, wash it carefully in warm soapsuds and dry carefully.

Quicker Drying Stockings and socks will dry much more quickly if, after washing, rinsing and wringing, the hand is run through each one, all the way to the toe, to thoroughly separate them.

Paint on Windows Steel wool proves very effective for removing paint smears from window glass.
