

Nationalists Strike Hard At French Farmers In Algeria

ALGIERS (AP) — Algerian nationalist forces striking at mid-night hurled their heaviest single attack against European colonist farmers Monday, slaying more than 20 in a savage massacre along a fertile coastal strip of western Algeria.

The well-organized series of killings and burnings apparently caught massive French forces in the region by surprise.

More than 40 farmers in an area about 14 by 16 miles were over-run and the buildings burned during a seven-hour attack. The area centres on Ain Temouchent, a marketing centre of 20,000, 40 miles southwest of Oran and 50 miles from the Moroccan border.

Sketchy French reports of the incident listed "about 20" Europeans and five Muslims killed by the rebels. The Muslims presumably worked for the farmers. Details of the attack were slow because the Nationalists cut communications lines as they swept along.

KENSINGTON 4-H

The regular meeting of the Kensington 4-H Calf Club was held in Kensington School Thursday evening with the president Murray Mayhew presiding, and nine members present. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary Stanley Palmer.

The members approved payment of expenses resulting from the crokinole party, and decided that the next judging class would be held at Harold Palmer's farm on May 10th at 7 p.m., and that the next regular meeting will be held in the Margate School on May 26th.

Club leader Arthur Proffitt read the club news from the three counties, and this was followed by the participation of the club members in writing the first of four annual tests in connection with the work of the club.

Mr. Allan Palmer, Prince County agricultural representative, was present and gave a short talk on club work in general, and requested club members to attend the meetings regardless of whether they did or did not own a calf this year.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Faculty athletic representatives of the Pacific Coast Conference Sunday placed the University of Washington on two years probation and slapped on other restrictions which will cost the university $52,000.

The action followed investigations by conference commissioner Victor O. Schmidt into Greater Washington Advertising Fund, more commonly known as the Torchy Torrance Slush Fund.

Schmidt said that "some few" athletes who had completed eligibility admitted having received under-the-table payments from the fund.
