Boston University Quotes Late Theodore Roosevelt

Boston University in its annual fund raising campaign and brochure states: "College education is naturally important since education, America's future, world peace, and human survival are all tied up together."

Boston University also issues these prophetic words from a man who hadn't even met Krushchev or Mao Tse-tung: "Our country calls not for life of ease, but for the life of strenuous endeavor. The twentieth century looms before us big with the fate of many nations. If we stand idly by, if we seek merely swollen, slothful ease, and ignoble peace, if we shrink from the hard contests where men must win at hazard of their lives and at the risk of all they hold dear, then the bolder and stronger peoples will pass us by and will win for themselves the domination of the world."—Theodore Roosevelt, in 1891.

Boston University is stressing not the size of the gift but the fact that each person gives to the Alma Mater. There are sixty-five thousand members in the alumni, three thousand giving of their times to launch the appeal. In 1958 thousands of alumni gave Boston University one hundred thousand dollars, during the Annual Giving's first year, with the promise of similar continued support.

Boston University's slogan is effective for any group large or small: "All of us Includes You!"
