

Astronaut pioneers baby feeding idea

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Topics this week: An astronaut's way of feeding babies, a medical passport, and lollipop rewards.

BABIES AND ASTRONAUTS
Babies and mothers are promised a dividend from the space age.

Astronaut John H. Glenn, Jr., ate from a plastic squeeze tube, squirting food into his mouth during orbit. Now, the same idea is being developed for non-space easy feeding of babies during travel by car or plane, or on picnics. Similar food tubes are equipped with a clear, plastic, hollow-stemmed spoon attached to the tube.

The Guardian, Charlottesville, Tues., July 24, 1962, 17.
You may be setting an unwise precedent in rewarding or bribing a child with a lollipop or cookie, says Dr. Morton B. Glenn of New York City.
Food regarded as a reward in child or adult life could tend to encourage obesity. "The harassed mother, who says to her two-year-old, 'If you'll be good, I'll give you a cookie,' is probably starting a habit that could ultimately result in her child's having a shorter life span as an adult" due to obesity.

Just the right amount of fruit, vegetable or other food can be squeezed into the spoon.
