

The Heritage.

The rich man's son inherits lands, And piles of brick, and stone and gold, And he inherits soft, white hands, And tender flesh that feels the cold, Nor dares to wear a garment old; A heritage, it seems to me, One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

The rich man's son inherits cares; The rank may break, the factory burn, A breath may burst his bubbles shares, And soft, white hands could hardly earn A living that would serve his turn; A heritage, it seems to me, One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

The rich man's son inherits wants, His stomach craves for dainty fare; With sated heart, he hears the pants Of tolling hinds with brown arms bare, And wears in his easy chair; A heritage, it seems to me, One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit? Stout muscles and a sinewy heart, A hardy frame, a hardier spirit, A king of hands, he does his part In every useful toil and art; A heritage, it seems to me, A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit? Wishes o'erjoyed with humble things, A rank adjudged by toil-worn merit, Content that from employment springs, A heart that in his labor sings; A heritage, it seems to me, A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit? A patience learned by being poor, Courage, if sorrow comes, to bear it, A fellow-feeling that is sure To make the outcast bless his door; A heritage, it seems to me, A king might wish to hold in fee.

A rich man's son! there is a toil, That with all others level stands, Large charity doth never soil, But only whitens, soft, white hands— This is the best crop from the lands; A heritage, it seems to me, Worth being rich to hold in fee.

O poor man's soul scorn not that state; There is worse weariness than thine, In merely being rich and great; Toil only gives the soul to shine, And makes rest fragrant and benign; A heritage, it seems to me, Worth being poor to hold in fee.

Both, heirs to some six feet of sod, Are equal in the earth at last; Both, children of the same dear God, Prove true to your heirship vast By record to a well-filled past; A heritage, it seems to me, Well worth a life to hold in fee.

James Russell Lowell.

Actual and Imaginary Necessities.

What queer ideas of life some persons have. Very mixed notions prevail of what go to make up the needs of existence. And the silliness of some people with regard to the supposed degradation of doing any work is exasperating. Here is an instance which tends to make one declare that a little healthy starvation would be the best thing for such people. A lady writes to the paper:

"Hearing of a case of marked destitution in the vicinity of my home I determined to investigate it and render such assistance as I could. I found the family in actual want. They had been living for a week on potatoes alone. The family consisted of a widow with a grown daughter and several smaller children. The mother and daughter affected absurd and amusing airs.

"We're used to better things," said the daughter, who had evidently spent half the morning curling her hair. "Indeed we are," said the mother. "We were born and raised ladies."

"Indeed we know what fine society means." "Indeed we do. We've went in the best, in our day."

"And could again with a little help. 'Our hands have never yet been disgraced by common work.' 'Nor never will be if we can help it.' 'The visiting lady adds that feeling sorry for the little children she said to these women, 'If you will tell me what you need most, I will see that you have it.'"

After a prolonged and whispered conference between the mother and daughter, the mother said with the utmost complacency: 'If you will get the little girls some blue kid shoes, a beaded Jersey jacket for my oldest daughter, and a set of Langtry waves and an embroidered shopping-bag for myself, we will try and get along for the present, as our most pressing wants will thus be relieved.'

The truth of the above may seem at first hard to realize. But such useless and foolish people do not actually exist. We know of a case in which a group of friends once subscribed a certain sum for a genteel family who were penniless, and well-nigh dinnerless. The amount was sufficient to provide fire-wood and food for some time—these being their urgent wants. The indignation of at least one of that group was intense when he saw, within the week one of the females of the household referred to flaunting a new and tasteful silk garment, on which, he learned, she had spent one-third of the sum which had been donated to line their stomachs, not to cover their backs. This sort of thing it is which chills the charity in people's bosoms. These were women who ought to have had common sense, judging from their education and former surroundings.—Monetary Times.

New and Original Departure in Coal Cooking Stoves COMBINING DURABILITY, HEAT AND ECONOMY.

This Out represents my Patent Fire King Cooking Stove, with the oven end and lining partially drawn out, as it appears while being cleaned, or when a new lining is being replaced.

THE above Stove I invented and patented in 1876, and at the present time HUNDREDS ARE IN USE, giving perfect satisfaction. A large number have been in constant use for eight years, and the repairs have been very trifling, in many instances none have been required. This valuable experience should be sufficient evidence of their durability, which is accounted for in the following—It has, instead of a lined Fire Box, two heavy Currugated Cylinders, which obviate the expense connected with all Square Cooking Stoves of being compelled to renew Linings and Grates, at least once or twice every year. The heat being radiated from the Cylinders to all kinds of ordinary Coal Cooking Stoves. The Cylinders are situated directly under the cover holes, and a fire may be made in one or both, thus adapting it for use either in winter or summer, with equal satisfaction, besides effecting a great saving to fuel. I have also attached the PATENT TELESCOPIIC OVEN to all my Elevated Oven Wood Stoves, such as the Waterloo, Niagara, Star, &c., causing the thousands using them to exclaim—My Stoves are worth TEN DOLLARS MORE than the same kind made by other foundries. The trade and retail purchasers will please bear in mind the fact that although a great advantage is claimed for my own Oven above all others, they cost no more, and being the sole manufacturer and patentee, no other foundry can supply. Enquire for Fawcett's Patent Telescopic Oven, and if your dealer has none on hand send direct to the Sackville Stove Foundry.

I am adding several new and handsome Patterns this season, which, with my former large variety of One Hundred Different Patterns and Sizes of Cooking, Parlor, Office and Hall Stoves, also Farmers Boilers, Hollowware, Ploughs, Stove Pipes and Tinware, comprise the most complete assortment offered by any manufacturer in the Lower Provinces. Terms and prices will be found as favorable as can be obtained elsewhere.
