ELLEN'S DIARY

Winter Blossoming Flowers Bring Cheer To Dreary Days

"So—not away yet!" we commented to papa starting who lingered near his doorway on the garage-roof this morning.

"Not yet!" he replied in indifferent tones. "She says" he lowered his voice and nodded toward the indoors "next week she will be ready. But that doesn't mean a thing. She may put it off again or she may take the notion to go tomorrow. What day is this anyway?" he queried "I thought it was Tuesday."

"It is Tuesday. Remember? It was too dampish yesterday to wash."

He shivered slightly. "This north wind should dry them."

"It should" we agreed.

"You shouldn't" he managed a chuckle "pin them so close together. You ought to stretch every article as wide as it will go without splitting the seams—yes every piece! Then folks will remark on what a great big wash you have spread!"

"But there are no folks to see this clothesline" we laughed. "Only the man in the house on the hill—and men don't notice such trivia. There's not even a robin about today to see the extent or time of our wash."

"No!" he lapsed into his former or desolate tones not even a robin, alas—or other starlings, nod like the summertime this. No leaves no flowers."

"A few pansies 'for thought' " we offered.

There was a spell of silence. "Well, it's chilly here" he remarked turning to enter his doorway.

The clatter of the spreader came to us from the field up the woodland road in a familiar and extremely good tune of the season. Manure was being spread there in advance of the plowing, to prepare it for the mangel ground of spring. Lightly overcast the morning was but the wind was fresh and clean and the forecast promised clearing.

So odd pansies blossom—and indoors the geranium slips potted in late summer are now budding to give us some bright winter-bloom. Now too the Christmas cactus buds swell and an African violet, by name "Venice Blue" a full of attractive pastel bloom.

Few feathered friends November gives, few blossoms. But to bring a winsome touch, November's brides and brides-to-be we get to brighten the days with their romances, since young or older "All the world loves" lovers. We wish them every happiness—the couples who set out now along that unbuilt trail that is the marriage road!

"There—that's enough reading" James says putting by his glasses.

"Ho-hum" he yawns sleepily in the old armchair. Then smiles. "You couldn't guess, Ellen, what I'm craving this very minute" he says: "A bit of that leftover cod we had at supper. Creamed, do you call it? I'd like it hot over a piece of toast. Yes" he nods "they do advise, if you have a yearning for some special food, it'll not harm you a mite. Kill or cure—let's try it anyway" he grins.

Until tomorrow—Diary—Good-night.

Reading Broadens Horizons, Gives Children New Outlook

It has recently been said in Canada that a bad book can do no harm. Is the converse true? Can a good book do no good? I would emphatically dissent from both propositions. Books are a potent force for good and for evil, and especially for good or evil in the lives of the young. Nothing is more certain than that young people will find bad "literature."

It is of immense importance that they should also meet good books. I once was shown a work of a factual nature with the remark that it was "very educational." I resented the implication that such works are more educational than others, although it is indeed a source of satisfaction that the mass of useful information needed by young people today is available to them in well-written and well-produced works with abundant illustrations.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bruce, Charlottetown, wish to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Mary Lorna, to Solomon Loupe Tawil, son of Mrs. Sophia Tawil and the late Mr. Tawil. Marriage to take place Saturday, Nov. 21, at 3 p.m. in St. Peter's Cathedral.

But education, broadly conceived, demands above all works of imagination: poetry, drama and fiction. Education, we are told, is growth and is life. If this broad general meaning is accepted, then works of imagination must be among the primary materials for education. Children cannot really grow, they cannot truly live, without them. We grow by experience. The relatively narrow and restricted experience of the child's life is immensely extended and enriched by those books which lead him into other worlds, and then return him to his own with a new vision and a deeper insight.

As for living, we live through close and clear contacts with other human beings. In the world of books the child meets people, his contacts with them are free and familiar. He can frequent his book friends as he chooses. They never repel him. They provide a perfect form of escape when his contacts with the world are difficult. But book people, if they are the real people of good books will return him to the world of his contemporaries more perceptive and more human.

Books are sometimes set aside as slightly anti-social; in favour of a "group activity." It is too often forgotten that a book may be the centre of one of the best of all group activities, reading aloud. Librarians have set an admirable example in maintaining or renewing this almost forgotten art. At one time it was a central activity in almost every good home. Life in some Canadian homes is still enriched by it. In too many, however, it is now practised only for the benefit of those who cannot read, instead of bringing all together for common enjoyment of the kind of pleasure which once really tasted never fails.

Young Canada's Book Week is dedicated to the mission of making good books better known to all young Canadians, and to their elders. It is a pleasure and privilege to be allowed to act as patron in such a splendid cause.

MR. AND MRS. URBAN JOSEPH FARRELL

Marriage Vows Exchanged In Lovely Autumn Ceremony

St. Peter's Church, Seven Mile Bay, was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Bernadette Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Murray, Albany, became the bride of Urban Joseph Farrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Farrell, Lot 16. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. R.F. MacDonald, assisted by Rev. John Kelly.

Baskets of autumn flowers decorated the church and nosegays of red roses and white ribbon marked the guest pews.

Mrs. Clint Howatt was organist and accompanied Mrs. MacCarville as she sang appropriate hymns during the ceremony, and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of lace net over taffeta, slipper length, featuring a slim fitted lace bodice with bouffant skirt worn over hoop. The gown was complemented by a lace bolero with long tapering sleeves and tiny stand-up collar. The waist length veil of tulle illusion was held in place with a matching bandeau of shirred tulle with sequin trim and she carried a semi-crescent of white carnations and ivy.

Mrs. Amial Douguy, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, was gowned in blue nylon over taffeta, ballerina length, matching headress with rosebud trim, matching mitts and she carried a semi-crescent of yellow mums and ivy.

Nancy Ann Douguy, as flower girl, was charming in rose taffeta with matching hat and she carried a basket of white and yellow mums.

Mr. Wilfred Farrell was best man and Messrs. Leo Farrell and Eugene Murray were the ushers. During the nuptial Mass, Joseph MacIntyre, nephew of the groom, was the server.

Mrs. Murray chose for her daughter's wedding a navy dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a two piece navy dress with corresponding accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception for sixty guests was held at Birch Hill Lodge, where the bride's table, with its attractive arrangement of cut flowers and tapers, was centered with a three tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. David Lecky was in charge of the guest book. Rev. John Kelly was master of ceremonies and Rev. R.F. MacDonald proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded. Telegrams were read from Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell, Malden, Massachusetts; and Mr. and Mrs. David Warren, Toronto.

For a honeymoon trip through the Maritimes, the bride traveled in a green jacket dress with white trim, black and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Out-of-town guests were Miss Mabel Farrell and Mr. Wilfred Farrell, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Amial Douguy, Eugene Murray and Miss Theresa Bryar, St. John, N.B.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrell will reside in Summerside, where the bride is in the employ of the Island Telephone Company and the groom is with the RCAF Station.

TEACHING HAMPERED

MONTREAL (CP)—Art teaching is hampered by Victorian dullness and restrictions of 19th century realism. Dr. Arthur Lismer, head of the school of art and design of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, said Wednesday. Addressing the fifth annual national convention of Canadian Art Teachers, Dr. Lismer said "We as teachers are the last to speak up for the rebels of the art world," he said.
