

JINGLES AND JESTS.

The Saving Grace of Molly.
The choir lifts its voice in song,
The parson's prayer is all too long,
With heads bowed low the vestment throng,
Forgets earth's fame and folly.
Tears well that I should do so, too,
But cross the aisle in nearest pew,
I see the laughing eyes so blue
Of Deacon Harvey's Molly.

Sometimes I view for briefest spell
The pearly eyes that secrets tell,
The secrets that I know so well,
Since I and Cupid taught her.
But, lest we're seen, we must beware,
So at the gargoyles quaint I stare,
Repeating to myself a prayer
For Deacon Harvey's daughter.

And thus it is from week to week
On Sundays I'm devout and meek,
The saving grace I ever seek,
Renouncing weekday folly.
There's all of hope in one sweet face
Which in my heart has found a place,
And all I know of saving grace
Is Deacon Harvey's Molly.
—Boy Farrell Greene in New York Journal.

Three In One.

Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, a former premier of the Australian colony of Victoria, was once made the object of a peculiar embarrassment. A man on a public occasion presented himself to Sir Charles, who had been appointed to some petty government office after a campaign in which there had been questionable electrical practice. "I suppose," said Sir Charles, "that you are one of my supporters?" "Three of them," answered the man, with a wink that was impossible to misunderstand.—Pearson's Weekly.

In a Garret.

In a garret-lived a poet
Fifteen stories high,
Building had no elevator,
All the world passed by.

Never any bill collectors
Bothered him, for they,
Tolling to the fifteenth story,
Perished on the way.

"Clever chap!"—so ran the verdict
As the world passed by.
"Genius merely means a garret
Fifteen stories high."
—Atlanta Constitution.

BEE BUZZES.

In wintering it is always best to take away all but one queen.

Very late swarming out is good evidence that the bees are starved out.

Keep the brood as near the center as possible and the honey nearest the outside frames.

The queen, no matter how prolific, should be confined to the space occupied by the cluster.

A queen bee lays both fertilized and unfertilized eggs, alternating from one kind to another in rapid succession.

The queen should not be shifted around from one hive to another, as the bees will get confused and will often incite robbery.

It is better to have a queenless for some time than to have a young brood from which the queen has been driven, as the worker bees often perform the duty of laying eggs.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Great Interest to Farmers.

The management of the Charlottetown Soap works, announce to the farmers of Prince Edward Island, that they have purchased at a very low figure for the year 1898, all the grease by product of the town's lard, and at a price from time to time to be supplied to the farmers at a price superior in article, and at a source of work.

KLONDIKE BAR Soap by all dealers.

THINK OF IT.—A first class laundry and scouring soap only 10 cents for 5 lbs. It will be a waste of time and money for farmers to bother about soap making now. The grease he has sold to the Pork Factory for 5 cents per lb. will be returned to him, manufactured into a first class article of soap at a cost of a fraction over 3 cents per lb.

Dresden's Newspaper.

Dresden owns a singular piece of property. It is a morning newspaper, Der Dresdener Anzeiger. This daily, upon the death of its last proprietor, was willed to the city, upon the condition that all profits arising therefrom should be spent upon the public parks. This year a large playground of nearly eight acres was purchased from Prince George, the king's brother and heir apparent, and it will be ready for use next spring. The paper continues to hold the respect of all citizens, for the trust has been carried out in its broadest spirit, and the power has never been employed to foster any school of opinions.—Fourth Estate.

Disappearing Guns.

Disappearing guns are a comparatively recent invention. Their great advantage is the fact that they may be loaded with comparative security, and, being exposed only during the moment of firing, are less likely to be disabled by the enemy. One of the earliest inventors in this line was General De Russy, who made models as early as 1840.

The old story of Prometheus is a parable. Prometheus was on terms of intimacy with the gods. From them he stole fire, and gave it to men. For this sin he was bound to the rocks of Mount Caucasus, and vultures were set upon him. They only ate his liver. This grew again as fast as it was pecked away. Are his sufferings to be imagined?

Take a modern interpretation of the parable. There is no cooking without fire. In cooking and eating the mischief lies. The stomach is overtaken, the bowels become clogged, they cannot dispose of the food that is given them. The impurities back up on the liver. Then come the vultures—the torments of a diseased liver. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is more than equal to the vultures of dyspepsia and its kindred diseases. There is no more need of suffering from dyspepsia than there is of hanging one's self. Sold by all medicine dealers the world over.

TRAINING THE DEAF.

Habits Formed in the Earliest Classes Are of Fundamental Importance.

The first few months of the school life are devoted chiefly to exercises for the development and training of those senses still possessed by the child, which must do the work of the missing sense in addition to their own and in cultivating in him the habits of obedience, attention and concentration, without which he can make no progress. The attention on the part of the deaf child in the classroom must be closer than is required of a hearing pupil, for if his eyes wander from the teacher's lips he immediately loses the connection, since his ears do not tell him what is being said. The habits formed in the earliest classes are of fundamental importance, and a great responsibility rests upon the teachers of the lowest grades.

Before the actual teaching of speech the attention of the child must be aroused, his interest awakened, the spirit of observation, imitation and obedience cultivated, and the senses of sight and touch rendered alert. This is attained by a series of introductory exercises nearly in the form of play. The games are arranged to train the sight to rapid and accurate recognition of objects, colors, number, forms and movements and to develop in the sense of touch a swift and delicate discrimination between forms, surfaces, textures, weights and finally vibrations. The eyes must do the work of the ears in comprehending the speech of others, and the tactile sense must come to the rescue in the training and guiding of the pupil's own organs of speech. The ability to distinguish differences of vibration by touch is the objective point of all tactile training, and the exercises bearing directly upon this are conducted with musical instruments, such as the guitar, zither and piano, and then applied to the vibrations of the voice as felt in the chest, throat and head.—John Dutton Wright in Century.

Said the ice and cracked a smile.
