Strange But True
By F. R. MacArthur

Jean Riouard, 68-year-old farmer of France left his farm house recently vowing that he'd drown his unwanted dog. Half an hour later the dog returned alone. Riouard's body was found in a river nearby, drowned by the dog he'd set out to drown.

You can be fined for backing through a red light as well as for driving through one. If you don't believe it just try it and see where you get off at.

A recent report of the Aero Medical Association gives the oldest pilot a pretty high rating. More than 1000 civilian pilots have passed the three score mark without having any serious mishaps.

A Pontiac, Michigan goat got the police's goat recently. A certain housewife sent a call to the police station that somebody was trying to break into her home. The Law rushed to the scene and discovered a goat banging its head on the door.

A trio of goats owned by Hazen Howard when he operated the general store at Cornwall, ate a whole thorn hedge right down to its roots.

Two years later the hedge started growing again and today is back to normal growth.

A couple of these goats climbed on top of the hood of Dr. O. H. Curtis' car while he was making a sick call in his village. But they didn't get the doctor's goat for he drove right off and the animals had to jump for their lives.

If a wife in Michigan decides to leave her hubby, she may have to do so in a barrel, because the law says that all her clothes belong to her husband.

To discourage former suitors, married women of the Silkman Tribe of South America paint weird mustaches on their upper lips.

Before there were clocks in England, a man went the rounds of the king's palace crowing like a rooster every hour. That chap was sure the cock of the walk.

There are too many people in too many cars in too much of a hurry going in too many directions to nowhere for nothing.

At long last, I have found out what pockstick sticks are good for. You could build a guitar with them as did Earl Swafford, Anneton, Ala. Now he's making a fiddle or going to make one with the 3,000 pockstick sticks he's saved up.

I see by the papers where a fellow on the prairie eats three big onions every day because he thinks they'll make him live longer. In any case, he is certain to live a long longer.

Clermont, Ky., has an oversized youngster in the person of Billy Greenwell. At 15, Billy weighs 402 pounds, stands 6 feet, with a waist line that eats up 60 inches of tape!

The big boy weighed only 9½ pounds at birth. His unusual growth did not begin until he was three-years-old. Then he shot up and spread out like Jack's famous bean stalk. At his present rate of growth, doctors are predicting that Billy may grow into the world's biggest man.
