Alberton Division Exceeds Its Quota

Mrs. A.C. Green and Mrs. A. MacRae, co-chairmen of the Alberton Regional High School District, reported $3,033 collected on their quota of $3,000. This makes Alberton the first division to exceed its quota in this year's United Fund campaign.

Edwin Johnstone, provincial chairman, extended his appreciation for a job well done to Mrs. Green and Mrs. MacRae and all their co-workers in the Alberton Region. Mr. Johnstone said the achievement is all the more remarkable when one considers that these workers had to go out and make the collections during the harvest season when everyone in the area was busy bringing in the crops. He said it shows that it can be done at this time of the year even though he had heard some people say that it could not.

Police Sure Body Found Is Widow's

TORONTO (CP)—Six pieces of evidence have convinced provincial police that a body recovered from Lake Couchiching Sunday is that of Toronto widow Minnie Ford, missing for 3½ years.

The six points, as outlined Wednesday by Assistant Commissioner Harold Graham:

- The finding in the lake, near where the body was recovered, of a plastic bag labelled Algiers Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla.—a bag Mrs. Ford's husband got at a Shriners' convention in 1960.
- Mrs. Ford never had a broken bone and the body showed no sign of fractures.
- Height, age and other physical characteristics are identical.
- Mrs. Ford had arthritis in her right hand. The right hand of the corpse showed an arthritic condition.
- The body showed evidence of a tooth extraction in the upper right gum. Mrs. Ford had a similar extraction.
- Slippers with red stains, found with the body, have been identified as being Mrs. Ford's.

But absolute identification still eludes police. They have four teeth removed from the body but have been unable to find any dentist who attended Mrs. Ford to obtain a chart of her mouth.

The slippers gave police their best clue.

A member of Mrs. Ford's family has told experts at the attorney-general's laboratory that she got the paint on her slippers at her husband's Toronto service station.

Seven Frigates In Service Despite Personnel Crisis

OTTAWA (CP)—The navy still has seven old frigates in service despite an acknowledged shortage of trained personnel for destroyers.

Informants said here the defence department apparently intends to keep some of the frigates around for showing the flag in Canadian ports during the 1967 centennial year.

This plan, however, is said to be subject to fast cancellation if the manpower shortage becomes critical. A frigate has a crew of some 140 men—a destroyer about 250.

The frigates Victoriaville and New Waterford are stationed on the East Coast, the Beacon Hill, New Glasgow, Antigonish, Ste. Therese and Sussexvale on the west. All except New Waterford and Beacon Hill are in various states of reserve.

Rear-Admiral William Landymore, former chief of Maritime Command, warned before his July dismissal that six or seven of the navy's 20 operational destroyers would have to be tied by next summer if something weren't done about the shortage of trained personnel to man them.

BORROW CREWS
The aircraft carrier Bonaventure is undergoing a year-long refit. Many of her crew have been sent to destroyers. When the Bonaventure returns to sea next spring, informants said, the manpower pinch will become even more severe.

Defence Minister Hellyer said Tuesday in the Commons that the manpower situation is difficult. There was a shortage of 1,500 men.

However, the defence department hoped it could man all operational ships next year.

"I am not saying we will be able to, but we will be making every effort to do so next year."

Informants said naval men ashore are being posted to ships and that the "gaps" are being filled from the air force.

This would result in sailors spending more than normal time at sea which, they said, would be bad for morale. The navy a few years ago had more than half its men at sea, a peacetime record for any Western navy. But it resulted in a drop in morale and men leaving the service.

Rear-Admiral J. C. O'Brien, new chief of Maritime Command, is reported to have argued with Mr. Hellyer that insufficiently trained men are being sent to sea.

Destroyer Lands Rowboat Puffin

LISBON (AP)—The Canadian destroyer escort Chaudiere brought the little rowboat Puffin to this Portuguese capital its white-and-red hull caked with sealshells from the Atlantic.

The overturned rowboat was picked up by the Chaudiere Friday. Missing and presumed drowned are the two Britons who set out five months ago to row it from the United States to England.

The hatch cover of the boat was lost, but the log, binoculars, a radio receiver, cameras, exposed film, compass charts, food and personal items were found in its lockers.

Reporters were not allowed to see the objects belonging to David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29. But a pair of frayed oars, which had been securely attached to the Puffin, lay inside the craft.

The Chaudiere's captain, Cmdr. John I. Manore, said most of the log is legible. Luckily it was written in indelible ink.

He said that the boat would be put in custody of the Canadian embassy, awaiting a claim by the relatives of the two bachelor Britons.

"There is no note of distress or despair in the log and I do not have the impression they were in a bad storm," Manore said.

Sailors said the rowboat was found 350 miles from the last position given in the log, having drifted into the vicinity of the Gulf Stream.

This seemed to agree with a mysterious inscription found inside the hull, showing a bearded man stretched out on his back.

Priest Forms Federation

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest whose career has been marked by controversy, announced Wednesday formation of the American Federation of Priests.

Rev. William H. Dubay, suspended from church duties last February for his outspoken views, said at a press conference that a nationwide drive to recruit priests would start next month.

The union is needed so priests will have a way to make known their views to the bishops, he said. His 31-year-old priest, who once asked the Pope to remove James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles, said priests are prisoners of their rectories and aren't permitted to get out and deal with urgent social and political problems.

Father Dubay said he is awaiting a decision from Rome on appeal of his suspension.

Dubay first made headlines in June, 1964, when he publicly asked the Pope to remove Cardinal McIntyre as archbishop of Los Angeles for what Dubay said was the cardinal's failure to work against racial discrimination.

Premier Campbell Inspects Location

Premier Alex Campbell and members of his cabinet toured western P.E.I. on Tuesday to inspect various locations in Prince County as possible appropriate locations for the establishment of a National Park, rather than using land in Kings County, which is too valuable.

Hon. Keir Clark of Montague, minister of municipal affairs, stated: "We do not wish to destroy a good farming community. The land in East Point is one of the most productive potato farming lands in this province."

Possible sites for the Park included Cedar Dunes Park, near O'Leary, Anglo Park, Tignish, and Jacques Cartier Park, Alberton.

During Wednesday's Cabinet session held in Alberton, the Alberton Board of Trade submitted a brief containing the request for the establishment of a major development equivalent to a national park in Prince County.

Mayor Roy Leard and members of Alberton Town Council asked in a brief that a causeway and bridge, with improved roads from McNally's Point to Gordon's Wharf could, they hope lead to a National Park and golf course.

The speaker stressed that one must not be overly anxious to judge a child strictly on his I.Q. functioning. There are many other factors which must also be considered such as the social, environmental and the amount of exterior stimulation to which a child is exposed. Mr. Smith pointed out that a large number of our children are having difficulties in school because of inability to read properly. The importance of special classes was outlined in some detail. These included remedial reading, auxiliary and day training classes.

An active discussion period followed in which the various aspects of determining I.Q. were explained.
