See Lean, Hungry Look About Leafs This Year

(This is the third of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of the N.H.L. clubs. Today's story is about Toronto Maple Leafs. Tomorrow: Chicago Black Hawks.)

By FRASER MacDOUGALL (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Oct. 3 — (CP) — There's a lean and hungry look about Toronto Maple Leafs which may spell danger for the other National Hockey League teams this season.

One is the cocksure attitude which gripped the club last year when it was knocked out in the first round of the playoff after winning the Stanley Cup three times in a row. Instead, a rugged toughness pervades practice at training camp at St. Catharines, Ont.

Managing director Conny Smythe, always canny about pre-season predictions, says he looks for "a successful season." He bases his hopes largely on the vigorous play of second-year men.

In many ways, the team's chances in the hunt for the N.H.L. title and the Stanley Cup depend on the aging legs of Walter (Turk) Brode, at 36 the league's oldest player, and on the coaching skill of Joe Primeau, one of three freshmen coaches in the loop this season.

Turk Agile As Ever

Smythe says the seemingly ageless Turk appears as agile as ever in practice. Present plans call for the native of Brandon, Man., who broke into the N.H.L. in the 1936-37 season, to play 40 to 50 games in the 70-game schedule the Leafs open at home Oct. 14 against Chicago Black Hawks. Rookie Al Roling, who played one full game and two periods of another last season, will be in the nets for 20 or 30.

Primeau faces a tough assignment in taking over as coach from Clarence (Hap) Day, who has moved up to the post of assistant general manager. In his 10 seasons, Day coached the Leafs to five Stanley Cup championships, an N.H.L. record.

One of hockey's greatest play-makers in his playing days with the Leafs, Primeau brings to his new post a wealth of experience as an amateur coach. Last year his Toronto Marlboros won the Allan Cup and the Canadian Senior title. Twice he coached Toronto St. Michael's College to the Memorial Cup and the Canadian Junior championship.

Smythe says the only club roster question mark is left-winger Danny Lewicki. The flashy 19-year-old still has to demonstrate that he can make the long jump direct to the N.H.L. from amateur ranks.

At training camp, Lewicki has been working with centre Max Bentley and right wing Joe Klukay. Bentley, who got a late training star because of harvest work on his western Canada farm, is burning up the ice. Klukay, slow at first in rounding into shape, is fitting right with him.

that of Cal Gardner, Howie Meeker and Harry Watson. The other is led by Ted Kennedy with Ted Sloan and Sid Smith on the wings. Meeker got his chance when Bill Ezinicki failed to report to camp. That also opened the way for Sloan, who was sold to Cleveland Barons of the A.H.L. last season and repurchased later because of his fine play.

The other forward combination is headed by Johnny McCormack, who turned pro in mid-season last year, with Fleming Mackell and Ray Timmer on the wing.

Four veterans are back with the defence corps — Jim Thomson, Gus Mortson, Bill Barliko and Bill Suzda. Fifth defenceman is Hugh Bolton, who played last year with Marlboro Seniors. He was signed to take the place of Garth Boesch who retired to devote his time to farming.

Smythe figures Bolton an expert at getting the puck out of his own end, "should help" the club.

Bud Poile Takes Coaching Job

TORONTO, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Bud Poile's refusal to sign a player contract with Boston Bruins today brought him a coaching job with Tulsa Oilers of the United States Hockey League.

Poile had said earlier he wouldn't sign to play with the National Hockey League club again this year at the salary he was offered. He announced today that a telephone call from the Bruins had offered him the coaching job with Tulsa, a Boston farm club.

Series Notes

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4 — (CP) — Eddie Sawyer's almost-bald head has been saved. The second-guessers were all set, the rhubarbs and hey-rubes were primed to go off if Sawyer's gamble—using fireman Jim Konstanty in his first starting pitching assignment in two years—had back-fired. The greatest modern-day relief hurler in the business lost to Case Stengel's New York Yankees but his four-hit pitching chore over eight innings spells big-time in any league.

Quaker City folk were gloomy after their Whiz Kids dropped the decision, but they aren't blaming Sawyer or Konstanty. Jim made Sawyer look good but the Whiz Kids were a fizz with the stick as the Yanks' 21-game winner Vic Raschi held them to two sickly hits.

We have a big hunch fireman Jim will be around again before this series ends.

An Old Story

This is Joe DiMaggio's ninth World Series, just one short of the record set by Babe Ruth, another Yankee immortal. DiMag's cut from this year's classic, whether the Yanks win or lose, will shove his World-Series take-home pay (before the Government steps in) to more than $50,000.

The big black-haired slugger has been on seven series-winning Yankee clubs — 1936-37-38-39-41-47-49.

The most Big Joe got as a winner's share was $6,471.50 in 1937 when the Yanks whipped New York Giants in five games.

A Dug-Out Man

Casey Stengel, the guy with the palm-leaf ears, does all his master-minding from the dugout, but not Sawyer who takes up the third-base coaches' box when his kids are at bat.

Casey relegates this chore to a couple of old-time Yanks — spindly-legged Frankie Crossett on third and plump Bill Dickey on first. Frankie shone as a shortstop from 1932 to 1946 and Dickey was one of the all-time catching greats who has been field lieutenant in charge of the catching staff the last two years.

In the first-base box for the Phils is Allen Lindsey Cooke who answers only when addressed "Dusty." He was a member of Philadelphia Athletics in the days

Quietly Partisan Crowd

It was a quietly partisan World Series crowd. The fans set on their hands most of the time, waiting for Philadelphia Phillies to make the bid they never managed. Even so the crowd waited, hopefully, until Dick Sisler missed the third strike for the final out in the ninth. Then they sadly filed out the exits.

Not A Sellout

It wasn't a sellout crowd, believe it or not. There were several patches of empty, green seats. Only 30,746 people paid to see this first World Series contest. Official Shibe Park seating capacity is 33,166. Tuesday night a single $6.05 ticket was reported selling for as high as $50. Before game time, anybody could have bought a $6.50 ticket for $6.50 (no more) at the Shibe Park box office. These ducats, the Phils said, were turned back by Major League clubs which failed to use their allotment.

Curt Simmons There

Curt Simmons, the Phils $65,000 bonus rookie now an army private flew in from his camp Atterbury, Ind., training base on a 10-day pass. He donned a uniform, borrowed a pair of shoes two sizes too big and pitched 15 minutes of batting practice. "That kid sure gives this club a lift," commented catcher Andy Seminick.
