

"There's No Business Like Snow Business" and U.P.E.I. students are out to prove that the cold, white months of winter can be the greatest part of the year - if you know how to handle them. Winter Carnival '78, the most gala of all events at the university, is blowing our way and promises to hit with a full blizzard of races, sports, dances, parties, assorted riotous events, and a few less important things as well. Winter Carnival '78 chairman, Gerald McKenna, and his committee of more than twenty helpers have organized a full week of celebrations that will make the famous Quebec Carnival look stormed-out by comparison.

Everything gets started with a flurry of activity on Sunday, Jan. 22 when the snow-sculpting starts (with a bit of luck). Intramural sports occupy a good deal of time Sunday afternoon and continue Monday, finishing on Tuesday. Sunday night at 8, the Mel Brooks classic Blazing Saddle will be shown in Duffy Amphitheatre. On Monday the flurry will become a bit heavier as the Puckee v. Hoopee basketball game takes place. Following that, all students will be invited to come to a pub in the Barn. The pub will recall the fabulous fifties so everybody is expected to break out the grease and bobby socks. Prizes for the greasiest couple will be awarded. Residence students will have the chance to be greasy for several hours as supper in the cafeteria that night will be for greasers only. The infamous inter-residence awards will be awarded as well, featuring such prestigious awards as "The Amazing and Incredible Award", "The Mouth of the Year", and "The Most Powerful Stereo Amplifier of the in the Barn (where else?). The Winter Carnival Lottery Draw will be held and assorted other bits of tomfoolery will keep everybody in high spirits. On Wednesday, people on campus at noon will find entertainment by local musicians in Duffy Amphitheatre. Wednesday night will see a Bash in the gym featuring "Friends". For those people who prefer a quieter atmosphere, the Exchange coffee house in the Chaplaincy Centre will be open to everybody. On Thursday, the regular collection of clowns will congregate in the Barn to witness and participate in such carnival classics as the tug-o-war, the talent pub, tricycle races, pie-throwing contest, etc. The campus candidates for "Biceps of the Year Award" will test their prowess in the bench-press tournament in the Barn. "Sylvester Stretch" will provide music for the Bash in the gym, and a suicide skate in the rink from 1 - 3 a.m. will finish things (and perhaps a few participants) off for Thursday. On Friday the annual fashion show will see the campus beauties strut their stuff in today's latest fashions. Both the men's and ladies' basketball teams play Acadia in the evening. Friday night is the grandest night of all with the annual Carnival Ball being held at Confederation Centre. Tickets are only $6 per couple. "Pete Porter's Quartet", a group of professional musicians that come highly recommended, will supply the talent for the Ball, and the rule of the night will be to let the good times roll.

On Saturday the fun continues with a pub in the Barn at 2 p.m., crib and chess tournaments, men's and women's basketball, a hockey game that pits the Panthers against Mt. Allison, a Bash in the gym featuring "Tracks", and the second suicide skate for the survivors of the first. On Sunday the Carnival ends with an avalanche of good times. A bus will leave for Brookvale Ski Park at 9 a.m. and will return at 4:30 p.m. Anybody who enjoys cross-country or downhill skiing, or tobogganing will be looking forward to this. The final Carnival event is the Campus Cabaret at Confederation Centre theatre on Sunday night. Over twenty acts are being rehearsed with everything from music to drama to comedy to outright buffoonery in the line-up. Tickets are $3. apiece and seating is non-reserved. The potential for fun at the Cabaret is limitless, and the unfortunate person who misses it will have missed the biggest event of the entire week.

Winter carnivals have always been a big-event at UPEI, but Carnival '78 promises to beat them all. "There's No Business Like Snow Business" and there's no better opportunity for as many good times with good friends as at the UPEI Winter Carnival '78.
