SELL more clothing than all the other stores put together in Charlottetown.

We give you the reasons why they do the business.

- 1st.—They keep good honest Goods.
- 2nd.—They keep the largest assortment of Men's, Boys', and Children's Clothing on P. E. Island.
- 3rd.—They treat their customers in the most liberal way, always unselfish.
- 4th.—When they advertise goods at a price they sell at that price ever time.
- 5th.—They have the heart to sell cheap and do it.
- 6th.—They make a specialty of clothing and are always hunting the market for bargains in that line for their customers.
- 7th.—They are determined to have the confidence of the public and when they say a thing they mean it.
- 8th.—They keep the best, every garment guaranteed to be as represented or money refunded.
- 9th.—Their motto: small profits and quick returns.
- 10th.—They pay cash.
- 11th.—And last they wish to say they think they know their business fairly well. Some of their competitors have on several occasions said they did not know anything about the clothing business.

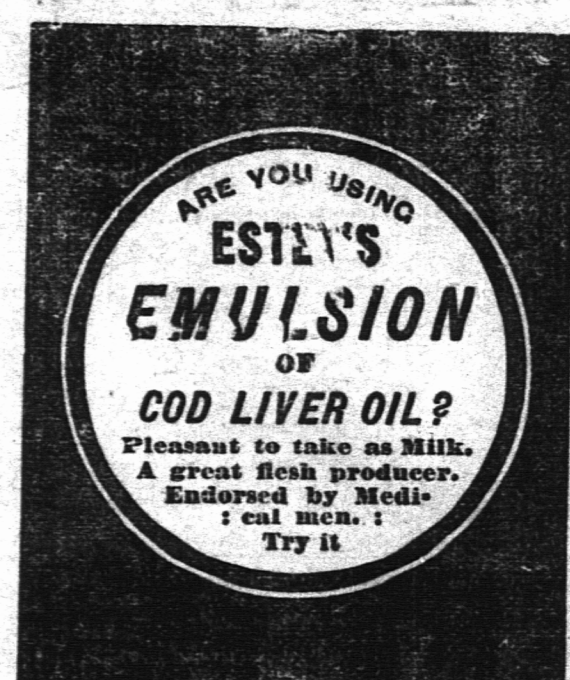

We admit if practising sharp tricks on customers is knowing the clothing business they don't want to know it. They don't believe the people of P. E. Island want any man who has been taught by a Jew, to cast an insult in their faces, and say they know nothing. We say the Island boys are able to hold their own wherever they go, and nearly always do credit to our Island home. They always show their good sense and judgment when they buy their clothing at

A Canadian Victory.

A LONDON PAPER RE-CALLS A FORGOTTEN CHAPTER IN CANADIAN HISTORY.

Most people forget the splendid defence of Canada, made early in the century, by the handful of Canadians—225,000, total population of Lower Canada, and 75,000 in Upper Canada—against the eight millions of the United States.

When England was involved in the struggle with Napoleon, its commerce ruined by the "Berlin Decree" and the "Orders in Council," its army and navy engaged in Spain and the Baltic, the States thought it a favorable opportunity for annexing Canada, and, in spite of all concessions, declared war.

The Americans thought the war would be a mere promenade, and on July 12th, 1812, General Hull from Detroit issued a proclamation offering peace and liberty to Canada if it submitted, slavery and destruction if it did not.

On August 16th this same general, with 2,600 troops and 37 guns, surrendered Detroit to the England General Brock, with 40 regulars, 250 Canadian volunteers, 700 Indians and 5 guns.

Two months later, the Americans failed in an attack on Queenstown, near Toronto (then called York, or Little York), when one of their generals, with 900 men, surrendered after a terrible slaughter, to a Canadian force, mainly militia and volunteers, not so numerous as the prisoners.

The war went on with alternate successes and defeats by land and sea, the only great and signal defeat on the English side taking place when the veterans released from Spain had come to the rescue of the Colonists, and the English General was in command of the fleet.

What dimensions the war might have ultimately assumed, we may judge from the fact that the Canadians, after losing a whole fleet, had just launched a 100-gun man-of-war on Lake Ontario, when peace was made on the status quo ante bellum in 1815.—London Spectator.

FEBRUARY 25, 1892.

The Prodigal's Return.

The return of the prodigal son filled the heart of the poor old father with joy and gladness. The son had repented of his errors and his return to the house of his childhood was an indication of the determination that he was resolved on doing good in order to make up as far as possible for the time he had spent in the service of Mammon.

When a man wanders from the paths of good and sojourns for a time in the tents of the wicked, his return to his former life with good resolutions for the future brings with it gladness to the hearts of his friends.

We are sure the friends of temperance in this city are delighted to know that the Examiner has again taken up the cause. For the past week or so it has given its readers editorials, clippings, correspondence, etc., on the baneful influence of the liquor traffic. But its leading article of Tuesday contains the overflow of repentance for past follies. To see the Examiner publishing an article condemnatory of the license law is really refreshing. True, the best part of the article in question is made up of extracts from the New York Times and Harper's Weekly and daily credited, but the Examiner's editorial acknowledgment of the truths contained therein call for an exclamation of great joy.

The first part of the Examiner's article is in condemnation of the present license law of New York. The second clause is in reference to the bill about to be introduced. The bill is mainly in the interests of the saloon-keepers, and to provide for the payment of the political indebtedness of Tammany Hall and Senator Hill to the keepers. It is meeting with much opposition and may be defeated, although it is very hard to beat Tammany Hall. The strongest protest against the measure is signed by 150 Roman Catholic clergymen of New York City.

Now that the Examiner is on the right track, we hope it will stay "put." We hope to see that journal go the full course—make a clean repentance, and use its influence for the suppression of the saloon. It has now condemned the license law; condemned liquor drinking and drunkenness in general. To be consistent with these principles it cannot advocate free rum. Its only alternative now is to stand by the flag of total prohibition, brought on by the adoption and faithful enforcement of the Scott Act.

We shall watch with interest the future course of our contemporary in this matter. Will it stay "put"?

Roman Catholic Unity.

Sir,—I see by today's Herald that my friend "An Aged Convert," is out with another letter, nearly two columns long, in which he attempts to wrestle with the statement I made, i. e., that there is no such thing as unity in the Roman Catholic church. As he promises to give the Herald another dose on the subject next week, I will leave him for the present; but before doing so will ask him to explain away, if possible, the change in the dogma of fasting during Lent. I suppose he is aware that the Pope has issued an order giving the faithful of the Province of Quebec liberty to eat their full during Lent. RASTUS.

Dissolving Views in St. Paul's School Room.

The Exhibition of Dissolving Views, given by H. J. Cundall, Esq., in St. Paul's School Room, on Tuesday evening last, was eminently successful in every respect. The slides exhibited were of an unusually interesting character and elicited much favorable comment from the audience. Portraits of Sir Walter Scott and Robert Burns, together with scenes alluded to in their lives were accompanied by the singing of appropriate Scotch melodies. Interesting places and objects in England, France, Switzerland and Italy were also exhibited, verbal descriptions being given by R. V. W. Hamilton. A number of comic slipping slides, always acceptable to the youthful portion of the audience, brought a very successful evening to a close. On Tuesday evening next the congregation of St. Paul's intend holding a Social at 8 o'clock, when Mrs. Rooms has kindly consented to sing. Every member of the congregation is heartily invited to attend. Baskets of provisions will be thankfully received at the School Room on Monday or Tuesday.
