

FALL FEST, IT'S HERE

Well, here it is Fall Fest '79. Yes, for those of you who haven't realized Fall Fest started today, Oct. 11th, and goes till Saturday night, Oct. 13th. Let's see everyone get out and enjoy themselves for three days. Fall Fest will only be what everyone puts into it.

Today, Thursday, there was a pub at the Barn in the afternoon, and while I'm sitting here writing this I hope there was a good attendance there. Tonight sees the Pig and Whistle, with Buddie and the Boys. This group has played here before as well as at Holland College, and as well at the Showboat this past summer. A good crowd was seen where ever they went---so be sure to get out and see them.

Friday sees a pub in the Barn starting at 2 p.m. It is Friday afternoon so head down to the Barn. (who knows guys, you might meet the girl you wanted to ask to the Harvest Ball, and that might be your last chance.) Speaking of the Harvest Ball, it's Friday night in the Charlottetown Hotel. Hands of Tyme is the Band and they are a good band, so it should be a good night---everyone all dressed up, dancing the night away. Now, listen guys, get out and ask the girl you've had your eye on. It's only six dollars a couple and promises to be a fun filled night. Tickets are available at the S.U. office or at the door that night.

Saturday sees our very own UPEI Panthers out on the football field against the UNB Red Bombers. Let's get out and cheer our guys on. They want our support so let's get out and show them we are able to cheer for them. Starting at half-time there is a pub at the Barn, this runs till 6 pm, and I'm sure our football players will join us there there after the game.

Saturday night will see Fall Fest come to an end with a Beer Bash at the Barn. The band playing is Trazara. It's Saturday night - nothing to do---so head on down to the Barn and enjoy yourself. Get out and enjoy Fall Fest '79.

DALTON HALL MEALS

THE ANSWER TO QUIVERING INTESTINES

by Jan Anderson

Does the thought of eating another tuna fish sandwich for lunch make your intestines quiver?

Do you find the very mention of the words "Big Mac", "Beaver Foods", and "Teen Burger", makes you break out in a rash? If so, you are probably suffering from what culinary wizards have identified as the "Brown Bag Syndrome."

It has been estimated that the average university student devours over 160 sandwiches per annum. And although a baloney sandwich can supply a fair amount of nutrition, it can also become very monotonous. But what can a poor hungry college student do?

Fortunately for you, Dalton Hall Catering has a delicious solution to the "Brown Bag Syndrome." Every Tuesday, beginning October 16, from 11:45 until 1:00 p.m. the senior home economics students will prepare a variety of gastronomic wonders to satisfy your growling, but slightly bored stomach.

The Tuesday meals will be produced in cooperation with the fourth year Home Economics course, Quantity Food Production, and the Food Services administration. As the home economics students are leaving the managerial process and intricate workings of a food service behind, you will be able to dine in style for just the costs of ingredients and preparation.

The first meal of the season will be "A Taste of Bavaria" and features such Germanic delicacies as Blackforest coleslaw, Octoberfest sausages, hot potatoe salad, Pumperknickle bread, and Apfel Kuechen (German apple crisp) for dessert.

Tickets for the meal can be purchased weekday mornings in room 107 Dalton Hall. They must be picked up before 10:00 the morning of the meal. Hurry before they are all gone. A warm "willkommen" is extended to all students, faculty, and staff members who wish to treat their gastro-intestinal tracks to a little variety at noon-time. See you on Tuesday.
