Couple Observe Their 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sellick celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary at their home, 280 Allen St., Parkdale, on November 18th.

A large number of friends and relatives called to extend congratulations and best wishes. Among the many callers was Mr. Frederick Newson, Brackley, who is 95 years of age.

The dining room table was lovingly with a lace table cloth made by the women of India and sent home to her parents, Miss Vida Stewart, missionary there, and was loaned for this special occasion. Centering the table was a three-tier wedding cake made by Mrs. Roland Sellick. The flowers were golden colored chrysanthemums and the tapers were white. Pouring tea in the afternoon were ladies of Brackley, and assisting in serving were three grand-daughters. In the evening the elders wives of Central Christian Church presided, assisted by others. The guest book was in charge of Joan and Roger Sellick, grandchildren.

Greenlaw-Johnston Marriage Is Solemnized

Trinity United Church, Summerside, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, November 8th, at 2 p.m. when Rev. Cecil R. Webber, assisted by Rev. John M. Sheen of Mt. Stewart, united in marriage Valerie Bell Johnston and Elmer Trecoot Greenlaw.

Miss Johnston is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Johnston, Beaver Street East and Mr. Greenlaw is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Greenlaw of St. Stephen, N.B.

Baskets of autumn flowers decorated the altar railing, and L.A.C. Kevin McSkell and L.A.C. Jack McKnight ushered the guests to the pews, marked with ribbon bows.

Mr. Eric Sheen presided at the organ, and accompanied Mrs. Terrance Elnarson who sang "The Lord's Prayer" prior to the ceremony and "I Love Thee" during the signing of the register.

The lovely brunette bride entered the church on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marriage to the strains of "Praise the Lord O' King of Heaven."

She was radiant in her wedding gown of white iridescent taffeta, floor length with slim fitted bodice, and cowl neckline. The collar formed a large bow at the back of the neck with streamers to the waist line. The bodice fell into a full flared skirt, worn with hoop, and ending in a short train.

Her shoulder length, over the face veil gracefully from a tiara with sequin trim. She carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations with an orchid centre.

She was attended by Miss Elizabeth Clark as maid of honor. Miss Olga Johnston sister of the bride was bridesmaid, and Gwendolyn Johnston, also a sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Miss Clark, and Miss Johnston wore identical gowns of oriental blue iridescent taffeta, fashioned on princess lines, floor length, with a deep V back and front. The bodice featured tiny cap sleeves.

They wore white wrist length gloves and matching headpiece and carried cascade bouquet of white carnations with yellow streamers.

Miss Gwendolyn Johnston, punier bridesmaid, wore capucine (shrimp) iridescent taffeta made on similar lines to that of the attendants' gowns. She wore a matching headband and carried a bouquet of white mums, with white streamers. L.A.C. Harold Smith was best man.

Mrs. Johnston ch. for her daughter's wedding a navy blue princess style street length dress with winter white accessories. She wore a corsage of pink sweet-heart roses.

Mrs. Greenlaw, mother of the groom, was attired in a blue two piece suit with red and white accessories. Her corsage was white feathered carnations.

Mrs. John E. Mountain, grandmother of the bride, was attired in wine chiffon Velvet with blue accessories. Her corsage was a Queen Elizabeth roses.

A reception for sixty guests was held at Birch Hill Tourist Home, where the bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom, and flanked by white tapers and bowls of white mums.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. John T. Nisbet of Riverview Heights, N.B. an uncle of the bride, and fittingly responded to by the groom.

Dr. Howlett Is Minister In Washington Church

The Boston Globe carries the following press release from Washington. The Dr. Howlett referred to is a nephew of Mrs. A.E. Toombs, 81 Filzroy Street, is a son of the late Mr. Albert D. Howatt, formerly of Charlottetown, and later of Newton, Mass. One of Boston's outstanding Unitarian preachers was chosen to become minister of All Souls' Church (Unitarian), at a meeting of the congregation, Washington.

He is Rev. Dr. Duncan Howlett, pastor of the First Church (Unitarian), the oldest church in Boston. He has served the Boston church for eight years. The invitation followed after Dr. Howlett preached at All Souls' recently.

He would succeed the late Rev. Dr. A. Powell Davies, one of the most liberal and outspoken Unitarian clergymen in the nation. Dr. Howlett graduated from Harvard College, Law School and School of Divinity. He practiced law in Holyoke before becoming a minister.

Prior to serving the First Church, he was minister of the New Bedford Unitarian Church from 1938 to 1946 and the Second Church of Salem from 1934 to 1938.

After receiving the formal invitation, Dr. Howlett upon consideration accepted the high honor to be minister in All Souls' Church, Washington.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Governor General Is Quoted On Book Week

Books, we reflect of this book Week—what fine companions they are!

Books and forbears. We are pleased to catch the same liking in the grandchildren, most of all in granddaughter who came to the world to be "a born reader" it would seem.

"Happy he, who in his home at night, finds in his books delight and sweet society" one well says. And looking back through the years, we find that of all entertainment, reading has been always our most satisfying delight.

We agree with Mr. Massey, (the Governor General) that "as a means of serious communication, there may be supplements to, but there is no substitute for the clear, adequate, permanent and portable book."

"Books" he has pointed out "foster, feed, inspire and preserve the individual in society. It is not only that the solitary reader finds himself in the company of great men, standing, as it were, on an equal footing and able to come to terms with them. The reflective reader is also invited, if not obliged, to look into his own mind and conscience to come to terms with himself. No other means of communication offers him this opportunity."

Among his essentials for happiness an unnamed author has listed these:

"Give me work to do; Give me health; Give me joy in simple things. Give me an eye for beauty, A tongue for truth, A heart that loves, A mind that reasons, A sympathy that understands; Give me neither malice nor envy. But a true kindness, And a noble common sense. At the close of each day, GIVE ME A BOOK, And a friend with whom, I can be silent."

Until Monday — — — Diary, Good-night.

"Now what shall I give her in gift, this first girl of the house?" "Her eyes will be brown like yours" the midwife said softly to the young mother, opening the blanket, our outer wrapping to smile down on us.

"Eyes!" the fairy whispered, "brown eyes! Then" she chuckled loud "I shall have her use them on books! Here" she made the sign—while we are sure we must have smiled as infants do when in first passing smiles, "They talk with the angels."

"A reader she will be. Let her respect and love books. Then through her lot be cast in the loneliest place of earth, if she has reading she will be completely unaware of any isolation there."

"Brothers... and sisters to us in turn received the same gift, which after all was inherent from parent, hostess and committee and a social hour enjoyed. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.
