Mike-Zeus Able to Fire 5,000 Miles

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Nike Zeus anti-missile Thursday scored the world's first known intercept of a 16,000-mile-an-hour intercontinental ballistic missile warhead.

BRIEF IS PRESENTED

The brief suggested that the purchase of Canadian goods is essential to increase jobs for Canadians and would be a spur to overcoming unemployment.

Other problems The brief also dealt with the Industrial Relations Act and the Workmen's Compensation Act and the Revenue Tax Act, as well as the buy Canadian program.

The delegation suggested a change be made in the Industrial Relations Act, as it pertains to union certification. The delegation asked that a majority vote of all employees be required before an application for union certification be granted.

A spokesman for the delegation said application for certification is granted now if 60 per cent of those who vote, vote in the affirmative. This means, theoretically, he said, that where only 10 employees of a firm employing 100 voted only six affirmative votes would be needed for an application of certification to be granted.

U.S. Deficit Nears Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. government would face a fiscal 1962 with a budget deficit of $4,300,000,000, or $700,000,000 less than was estimated in January.

Both income and spending were lower than was forecast in President Kennedy's January budget message to Congress. Receipts were lowered by $200,000,000 and outlays by $1,400,000,000.

The deficit nevertheless was the largest in peacetime ever for that of 1959, when the government spent out $12,400,000,000 of red ink.

CUBE TOSsing MARK BROKEN

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Want to hold a world record? Toss an ice cube back and forth with someone 1,764 times before it melts and you'll not only have cold hands but a title.

The world mark—such as it is—was set and shattered Wednesday. Two teen-agers in Albuquerque, N. M., threw one 1,403 times, breaking the record of 743 established by two Anderson, Ind., youths.

Then Gary Kroll, 16, and his cousin, Alan Kroll, 16, both of Lakewood, heard about the Albuquerque performance and said they tossed an ice cube 1,503 times before it melted.

"It's slick when you start it," said Gary Kroll. "Then it gets sticky." The only rule: Use a "recitation" refrigerator ice cube.

Mac Expected To Reveal New Policy

LONDON (CP)—The British government is expected to announce its big post-crisis stance, likely to snap out of its defensive posture in the next few weeks.

There are solid expectations that Prime Minister Macmillan, having completed his cabinet overhaul, will announce a series of economic measures aimed at protecting consumer interests and giving workers a greater sense of security.

Some inkling of what might amount to a new Conservative manifesto may emerge from the parliamentary debate on the Labor opposition motion calling for the government's resignation and an immediate general election. The debate will probably take place in the next few weeks.

It is believed Macmillan is planning to announce a series of measures designed to remove anomalies in the central bank's monetary policy, will a central feature of the government's economic philosophy.

White House Denounces Coup In Peru

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House denounced Thursday the military take-over in Peru as a "serious setback" to democracy. It ordered a halt in aid to the military.

On the heels of a White House statement that President Kennedy has noted the new developments in Peru with great concern, the state department announced Thursday that it was suspending our various assistance programs, with certain exceptions, until the military factors are involved.

The state department said the cutoff will take the effect of U.S. aid to Peru: 1. Withholding all except $100,000,000 of the $300,000,000 worth of U.S. aid earmarked for Peru since the inauguration of the Alliance for Progress plan by Kennedy March 13, 1961.

2. Withholding of undisclosed sums that might otherwise be going to Peru under the foreign aid program for the current fiscal year which Congress now is considering.

Test Called Climax of 7-Year Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Nike Zeus anti-missile Thursday scored the world's first known intercept of a 16,000-mile-an-hour intercontinental ballistic missile warhead.

The 48-foot Nike Zeus streaked up from Kwajalein in the mid-Pacific and intercepted "a special target vehicle" launched by an Atlas ICBM from California about 5,900 miles away.

Informed sources indicated the Nike Zeus rocket did not actually strike the warhead, but came close enough to have destroyed it if atomically armed.

"There would have been a nuclear explosion if the Nike Zeus carried a nuclear charge," said a source. "The rocket destroyed (kill) here under real conditions," a defense department spokesman said.

The Nike Zeus achievement came two days after publication of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's boast that Russia has a "rocket invulnerable to a 'ny anti-missile' rocket."

In announcing the Nike Zeus success, Defense Secretary McNamara retorted in a 10th anniversary address that Russia has developed its own anti-missile rocket.

McNamara declared that U.S. rocket development programs "give us confidence that our missiles would be able to penetrate any such (anti-missile) system which has been developed by anyone."

A Pentagon spokesman said he had no knowledge of any other successful intercept anywhere.

Thursday's achievement actually came on at least the second try. The spokesman said there was an earlier shot that was not a complete success. He declined to elaborate.

This was the opening of an Atlas intercontinental series that may continue for months, with the challenges presented in the Nike Zeus made more difficult each time.

But it was the climactic development so far in a seven-year program which has cost about $1,200,000,000 and would cost as much as $15,000,000,000 if the missile killer ever is put into production to help protect U.S. cities.

The army, which has been waging an uphill battle to overcome the Zeus into production, is hopeful the success of Kwajalein will give it a major program a big boost.

Before the test was held, McNamara made it clear he was sceptical about the combat of the Zeus.
