

men cheering at the movie pub during A Kiss Before Dying when the new wife was thrown off the roof. In the words of our editor, these incidents (the snowballs) can't be directly attributed to the Backlash page. Its true nobody can prove that it was directly because of the Backlash page, but it never happened before.

All these letters never happened before! What does this tell you. You can safely assume that what has been written has contributed to all this anger towards feminists. People didn't feel like this before they were told over and over again by the Backlash editors that feminists were to blame for everything from "global warming to natural disasters"

Hopefully next year things will go smoother than they have this past semester. Although I have to say Peter and Joseph have done one thing for me. They have made me realize how much fear and hatred there is directed at women and feminists. Hopefully this article will help others see this too.
