Success for UPEI Winter Carnival

Sue showed up a week later, ready and willing to answer any questions students might have about sex (at ten bucks a pop).

Other successful events that occurred during the week include the Pancake Breakfast where some rather tasty flapjacks were served up, and Wednesday night Trivia, which apparently was packed as usual.

Not all events were as successful, such as the Madhat concert where attendance was low (a mere three people showed up), and the pubcrawl, where only thirteen individuals were psyched for a night on the town.

Saturday was the big night. The Watchmen, a well known Winnipeg-based band played at the Barn, and put on an amazing show for the highly energetic sold-out crowd.

“This was one of the best shows UPEI has seen,” says Dougan. The infamous Rude Mechanicals and This Minor Tremble (of Ottawa) opened the show, and both bands also seemed to go over well. Being a wet/dry event, there were plenty of underage fans, and also lots of faces from off-campus.

“Although there wasn’t as big of an overall turnout as we would have liked, everything was lots of fun and the crowd was there when we needed them [money wise],” says Dougan.

Some of the low attendance and lack of participation could be attributed to the fact that it was a busy week for many students, and some found activities to be a bit expensive.

One student, who was asked why they didn’t take part in any of the events, commented, “I m lazy.”

Another student replied, “I m cheap and I have no school spirit.”

At least they’re honest.

But for the students that did choose to get involved, they certainly weren’t disappointed.

Tyler and Matt also wanted to give a shout out to the many people who offered a helping hand: Matt Hogan, Tim Willis, Jeff Smith, Julie Fitzpatrick, Alanna Snowie, Jocelyn MacSwain, Candace Francis and the Panther Lounge staff.
