We are informed that Hon. Judge Young recently presented to the Caledonian Club of this city with a handsome picture illustrative of the gathering of the club. Mr. Arthur has recently fitted up his mills with new and improved machinery, and is therefore in a position to turn out the very best work. THE Superintendent and two teachers, with a party of nine pupils from the School for the Blind, Halifax, have made arrangements for a Concert in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on the 15th inst. Besides the music, instrumental and vocal, the party will give an exhibition of the modes of teaching the various branches taught in this admirable institution. The School being non-sectarian, should receive the support of all our charitable citizens, who will contribute not a little to its success by attending the Concert, of which particulars will be published later. WASHINGTON EAST—I have on exhibition in my shop window a washing machine that does away with the old and laborious way of washing clothes; you can sit in your easy chair and rest while your washing is going on. It has been tried and proved genuine. Please call and examine this great Washer and Bleacher. Purchase one and thereby save labor and expense. They are sold for $2.00 each. G. G. JURY, sole Agent for the Monarch Washer and Bleacher, North side Queen Square, opposite Post Office. OWING to the advance in duty on raw material some of our hardware merchants have decided to advance cut nails fifty cents per keg, making the price now $3.00 for tenpenny and all larger sizes, while tenpenny or shingle nails are $3.50 per keg. Prices at present on the makers hands rule $2.90 and $3.40, respectively. Bar iron is also advanced 50 cents per 100 pounds, and other lines are likely to follow, as merchants cannot replace their present stocks at the prices they are now selling at. In fact, all products of iron and steel must advance proportionate to the rise in duty. AN IMPORTANT EVENT.—One week from to-morrow the United Order of Oddfellows will produce the great drama, the "Danites," assisted by several well-known ladies of this city. The play, which has won such a great reputation, is a clever and interesting production of the playwright's art. Its action is its strength, its development continuous, and its situations effective. It is bright to brilliancy; interesting as a young man's first sweetheart, and teaches many useful lessons. A large audience will be present, as several hundred reserved seat tickets have already been sold. Tickets are for sale at the Drug Stores, also at T. L. Chappelle's, C. P. Fletcher's, Beer Bros., Norton & Fenwick's, and by members. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best pain remedy for diarrhea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and take no other kind. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and ask for Mrs. kind mar17 eod & wky

CRUSHED TO DEATH

In a Stone Quarry.

Sad Ending of Robert Douglass.

NARROW ESCAPE OF HIS COMPANIONS.

Details of the Disaster.

A SAD and fatal accident occurred at Dowling's Stone Quarry, a few miles from the city on the Mount Edward Road, about four o'clock yesterday afternoon. It appears that at the time of the accident, three of the employees in the quarry were engaged loading stone alongside the wall. They had just put one large stone on the truck, and were preparing to lift another when a portion of the wall suddenly gave way with a crash and slipped down upon the unfortunate trio. One of the men, Robert Douglass, was stooping over the stone, preparing to lift, when the mass fell upon his head, crushing it against the stone and pinning him to the spot. Abraham Dowling and Sylvester Macdonald, the two men who were assisting Douglass in the loading, were in a standing position when the cave-in occurred. The falling earth and stones fell upon them, injuring them severely about the head and body. Both were stunned. Macdonald was covered to the waist with earth and stone, and had to be pulled out. Dowling was the first to recover consciousness—a few moments after the disaster. He at once set about releasing Douglass. By this time John Hogan and Dennis Dowling, two other employees who had been working near by, and who had heard the crash, rushed to the rescue of the injured men. Hogan assisted in the releasing of Douglass, and young Dowling liberated Macdonald. Douglass' head was terribly crushed, but he was not dead. He was bleeding profusely from the mouth and ears, as well as from the wounds on his head and face. He lived but a few seconds after his release, breathing his last in Dowling's arms. Macdonald was more fortunate. He escaped with his life, but his arms and legs are badly bruised, and he is cut about the face. Dowling's injuries are confined to some scratches about the head and face and some body bruises. Both certainly had narrow escapes. Mr. Dowling ascribes the falling of the wall to the frost cracking it near the edges. He says that he never considered it dangerous; but on the contrary thought it was the safest place to work in the whole quarry. From the top of the wall to where the men were at work in the quarry would be about eighteen feet. Word of the disaster was brought to the city as quickly as possible. Coroner Conroy was at once notified and the following jury were empanelled: Donald McLeod, foreman. James McMillan. Edward Fleming. Donald McKenzie. Felix Hughes. David Cavanagh. Artemas Newman. The coroner and jury drove out to the quarry, and after viewing the body and the scene of the disaster returned to the city. At eight o'clock in the evening an inquest was held in the Stipendiary Magistrate's Court Room. As the sad affair was not generally known there were but few spectators present. The testimony of Abraham Dowling, John Hogan and Dennis Dowling was taken. As it was in effect similar to the details given above we do not think it necessary to publish it here. The jury returned a verdict of "accidental death by the falling in of a mass of earth and stones." Douglass was about forty years of age. He came to the city from Mount Stewart a year or two ago. He was married last fall and leaves a wife who resides on Kent Street east, near the railway crossing. He had been working in the quarry but a few days. His remains were brought to town last evening. His wife and relatives are much grieved over his untimely end.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Early Prorogation Expected.

THE ADDITIONAL SUBSIDY.

MR. WELSH AGAIN ORATES

OTTAWA, June 7. This was a good day in the house, the prospects of any early adjournment depending on members to an indulgence in activity. A dozen government bills were swept through committee and off the notice papers. The Senate also had an industrial attack and put through a score of bills. Sir John said if the Opposition continued to be as good as it had been, prorogation might be expected on the 18th. By their smiles the Opposition indicated they would do their level best to aid such desirable object. After recess, Sir Richard Cartwright objected to the subsidy to Prince Edward Island, as a continuance of a policy which made the provinces subservient to the Federal Government, and taught the provinces to look to Ottawa instead of being economical in the management of their local affairs. Sir Charles Tupper said the subsidy was given on grounds not applicable to the other provinces. Mr. Davies objected to the subsidy on the ground that it was not large enough. Sir Charles suggested that the resolution could be withdrawn. Mr. Welsh said it was only a measure of what was due to the Island and suggested that if Canada would cut the painter and let the Island go, he would be painter.

The Traffic in Children.

LONDON, June 7. Since the revelations by the Pall Mall Gazette and passage of the criminal law amendment bill, the public believed the traffic in children impossible. A case in Lambeth Police Court has caused an universal sensation of horror. Edward Prockwell and three women were arrested charged with keeping houses of ill repute, and having procured scores of girls from ten to fourteen years. The government will prosecute the prisoners.

Irish Evictions.

DUBLIN, June 7. The evictions at Bodeky continued to-day. Tenant McNamara defended his house and poured boiling water over the evicting forces. A policeman who was holding the colonel's umbrella, dashed through a small opening made by the tenants. Other officers followed, finally the tenants were evicted and arrested.

Thrown from the Track.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., June 7. Two rail cars on the Saratoga express, occupied by excursionists, were thrown from the track near Pownall Station, Vt., to-night, fatally injuring two ladies and seriously injuring a number of other passengers.
