Retardation Conference Hears Optimistic Report

A highlight of the four-day conference activities of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children being held here, was the luncheon at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday attended by more than 175 delegates.

The function was tendered by the Mayor and City Council. A cordial welcome was extended by Deputy Mayor A. Walthen Gaudet in the unavoidable absence of Mayor Edwin Johnstone.

Quoting the plaque wording in the Confederation room, Provincial building, Mr. Gaudet said he sincerely hoped that what transpired at this conference would be a repeat "Providence being their guide, they banded better than they knew".

President L.H. Bell was made a presentation by Mr. Gaudet on behalf of the city.

"Arnold Toynebee has said that this era will be remembered, not for its political conflict or great scientific discoveries, but as the era in which mankind dared to think of social justice for all as an achievable objective. This is exemplified in the present upsurge of interest of the sick and disabled and their rehabilitation."

This challenging assertion by the guest speaker, Ian Campbell, national co-ordinator of Civilian Rehabilitation Branch, Department of Labour, Ottawa was followed by a comprehensive and thorough review of the activities during the immediate past towards achieving such a result in Canada.

REHABILITATION PROGRAM
Mr. Campbell outlined the development of rehabilitation program by Canada whereby provinces are assisted in developing programs. He emphasized the important role of voluntary agencies and particularly the important job being done by this association. He urged those present to keep in close touch with the program developed by the provinces and to make full use of the vocation and placement services available.

The federal government assists the provinces by sharing salaries of provincial rehabilitation staff, by sharing cost of vocational training, and through the health branch in many of the costs associated with mental and other health problems.

"The National Employment Service, through its special placement services is ready to assist in finding suitable employment", Mr. Campbell said.

Called upon by the Conference Chairman, Mrs. M.J. McGrath to make the presentations, the publicity chairman, J.M. Murley, was pleased to hand a beautiful hand-coloured scene of the Island to a group of eight speakers, as a gift from Mr. and Mrs. O.C. Craswell.

AFTERNOON SESSION
"New Break Throughs" and developments in research were discussed at the afternoon session of the conference.

Through the efforts of the Ontario Research Committee, the Ontario Department of Health has decided to set-up three diagnostic-prescription-research centres for the study of mental retardation. Mrs. J.O. Arrowsmith, C.A.R.C. research and clinical services chairman, announced in her report. The sites of two of these centres are in London, Ont., and Toronto. The third centre is not yet finalized.

In speaking on the form of research, Mrs. Arrowsmith stated that "research cannot be undertaken as a huge nation-wide project. Rather it will take the form of many projects by many research teams working in universities, laboratories, hospitals, institutions, schools, residences, communities, on individual studies, and the results from each one will add to the sum of our knowledge of mental retardation, all too meagre at present, until finally answers appear."

RESEARCH BOARD
The start towards the appointment of a scientific research advisory board was also reported by Mrs. Arrowsmith. The chairman of the board, recently appointed, is Dr. Wallace Grant, paediatrician and psychiatrist, staff member of the Children's Hospital and the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg. Dr. Grant will appoint a research board of 15 members to formulate a program for C.A.R.C. in Canada.

"I am happy to announce," said the research committee chairman, "that immediately following this annual meeting the small nucleus of the board already chosen will meet with Dr. Grant to begin their assignment".

Four technical papers covering various phases of research were delivered. They were:-
"Mongolsim and the Recent Break Through", by Dr. Norma Ford Walker, professor of human genetics, University of Toronto and director, department of genetics, Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto;

"Information and new Developments from the International Paediatric Congress, Montreal, and the international meeting Portland, Maine", by Dr. Wallace Grant, professor of paediatrics, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg.

"The Contribution of Educational Research Toward Solving the Problem of Mental Deficiency", by Dr. J.B. Richardson, professor of special education, University of British Columbia.

FINE SHEEP DISPLAY AT ABRAM'S VILLAGE

Some of the finest Cheviot sheep on P.E.I. were exhibited at Abram's Village yesterday afternoon where George Arsenault, along with other exhibitors, is seen (foreground) showing some of the 19 prize winning sheep owned by Henry W. Wedge, newly appointed provincial minister of labour and welfare.

PRETTY JUNIOR farmer, Miss Gail MacLean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacLean, Central Lot 16, is seen with her reserve champion holstein which also captured the first prize senior heifer honours under one year, at the Egmont Bay and Mont Carmel Exhibition yesterday afternoon. The exhibition is held at Abram's Village and attracted a very large crowd.

Egmont Bay-Mont Carmel Exhibition Is Successful

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARIAN
Sunny weather and a record crowd combined yesterday afternoon to make the 58th annual Egmont Bay and Mont Carmel Exhibition a huge success.

Federal member for Prince County Orville H. Phillips officially opened the fair which continues to expand each year providing more room for livestock and produce exhibits and more features for young and old.

During his congratulatory remarks Mr. Phillips stated that although this province is primarily an agricultural province, we are deficient in many products, such as butter, although we have a surplus of others such as potatoes and blueberries. He congratulated the president and directors for their excellent display of exhibits of such fine quality. He also expressed the regrets of Premier Walter Shaw and Henry Wedge who were unavoidably absent.

Senator George Barbour, who during his remarks suggested that the government assist the small farmers as much as possible.

Other speakers were Keith Harrington, M.L.A.; Mayor Edwin Johnstone of Charlottetown, Mayor W.A. Currie of Summerside, Edmond Arsenault of the Experimental Farm; Deputy Minister of Agriculture S.C. Wright, W.N. Black, director experimental farm, Rev. Phillip Cloutier, J. Watson MacNaught, Cyrus P. Gallant, a director of the exhibition, who said the directors are considering making the exhibition a two-day affair. Rev. F.J. Boute was chairman for the official opening.

Sheep exhibits are always a big feature of this annual fair and judge Alec Hamilton of New Perth stated he had an extremely difficult time in placing the classes of market lambs. Mr. Hamilton said "they were the strongest class of market lambs I ever saw in 20 years of judging. I had the hardest job I ever had placing those lambs".

Mr. Hamilton stated it had been five years since he had judged at the Egmont Bay-Mont Carmel Exhibition and added "there's been a wonderful improvement".

Mr. Hamilton also judged the swine and although he noted fewer exhibits than in some previous years he said "all hogs showed very good quality, some excellent individuals."
