Opening lead—seven of hearts. It isn't often that a player opens with one notrump and later decides the opponents can make a slam against him and therefore takes a sacrifice.

This phenomenon took place some years ago in a national tournament after Harry Fishbein, captain of the American team which this week is attempting to wrest the world championship from Italy, opened with a notrump.

The purist may quarrel with the notrump bid, lacking as it does the required 16 high card points, but Fishbein has never been a stickler when it comes to adhering to conventions, and he believes an occasional spitball adds a little extra zest to the game. East had a high card or two himself and doubled. South, with a hand clearly marked for play at spades, bid four of them. West was sufficiently impressed with his distribution to venture five hearts with his 3 high-card points, a reasonable enough bid under the circumstances.

After Fishbein passed, East correctly analyzed the distributional situation in spades and went to six hearts. This bid rolled around to Fishbein.

He took no umbrage at the insult being leveled at his notrump bid. He recognized that his 15 points plus the few points his partner might have were nearly all destined to go down the drain.

East had not pushed into six hearts, but had undertaken the slam voluntarily. Presumably, he thought his side would make the slam.

Fishbein's hand presented no proof that East was mistaken. True, he could count about 18 points for his side, which meant the opponents had only about 22. And true also that 33 point are frequently required to produce 12 tricks.

But the handwriting was clearly written on the wall. The A-Q of spades were of doubtful value defensively. The king of clubs looked as though it were on the chopping block right in front of East's marked club strength.

So Fishbein's bid six spades, got doubled, went down two, and saved a slam.

Another Canadian Firm Told No Red China Sale, Is Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — The B.F. Goodrich Corporation of the United States has informed its Canadian subsidiary that it cannot attempt to sell conveyor belts to Red China, a CCF member said Tuesday in the Commons.

Harold Winch, Vancouver East, said the Canadian subsidiary could not even supply catalogues and quotations to Communist China on goods for which export permits are available in Canada.

Mr. Winch said a friend of his visited mainland China last year and discovered that the city of Chungking required a lot of conveyor belts.

HIT REGULATIONS

This friend had suggested to the Goodrich Company at Toronto that it might tender on such a contract. The company forwarded the suggestion to the American parent corporation but was told that United States government regulations prevented any dealings with Red China.

Mr. Winch read a letter to this effect which he said had been received by Toronto lawyer E. B. Jolliffe from the Goodrich Corporation in the U.S. Mr. Jolliffe visited Red China last year.

Mr. Winch said the domination by the U.S. of Canadian companies has become worse since the Progressive Conservatives took power.

Mr. Winch said the Canadian government must make it clear to the U.S. that it will brook no continuation of "this interference."

If it could not persuade the U.S. to halt such interference the government should introduce legislation so that Canada would have control over its own exports.

Keel Is Laid For CP Liner

WALKER-ON-TYNE, England (Reuters)—The keel of a 27,500-ton ocean liner, largest ever built for the Canadian Pacific fleet, was laid Tuesday at the Vickers Armstrongs yard.

The liner, biggest passenger ship order for the River Tyne in more than 50 years, will cost $23,000,000 and should be ready for launching early next year. She is expected to make her maiden voyage in the spring of 1961.

The liner, not yet named, is being built on the berth from which Canadian Pacific's 25,385-ton Empress of England was launched two years ago.
