

A Soulless Man.

A DEAD MAN RESTORED TO AUTOMATIC LIFE—HIS SPIRIT FLED, LEAVING ONLY A MACHINE.

Concluded.

He then called upon Prof. Doremus and Dr. Chambers and myself to assist him. An incision was made in the body just above the heart, and the vena cava and great coronary vein were burst open. In these openings were inserted small silver tubes. On the left of the table stood two galvanic batteries. A slight cut was made just above the plexus of the four inferior cervical nerves and another above the first dorsal nerve. The conducting wires of the respective batteries were placed in connection with these cuts. A small pair of bellows was inserted in the mouth of the corps, and Dr. Chambers took charge of them. Prof. Doremus was placed in charge of the batteries.

At this moment attendants lead two fullgrowing living sheep into the room, and, at a signal from Dr. White, stood them near the table. Meanwhile, I had under instructions, connected two hollow rubber strings to the silver tubes already mentioned. The other ends were soon connected with the large arteries of these two sheep. The two tubes throbbled as the warm blood of the sheep bounded through them. It was a breathless moment, and as we leaned forward our interest was painful. Dr. Chambers began to work the bellows, and the lungs of the body slowly responded. Three or four minutes of the most anxious suspense ensued, as Dr. White bent over the body, pale with excitement. No movement could be seen save the slow rising and falling of the chest of the man's body. Two minutes more, and one of the sheep staggered and fell.

ALIVE AGAIN.

Rising erect and seizing some instruments, Dr. White called out: 'Now, Professor!'

In an instant the powerful current of the two batteries was turned on, and with a sudden jerk the body sat upright. Quickly forcing it back, Dr. White, with the assistance of some of the younger men, withdrew the tubes from the veins and closed up the small perforations. The wires were disconnected and the bellows removed. 'The respiration still continued!' 'The pulse beat faintly!' 'The corpse was alive!'

With each recurring sentence the doctor had tightened his grasp of my arm. He leaned toward me, and he fairly hissed out the words, 'The corpse was alive!' After a while he continued, with more moderation:

'The incision above the heart was well closed up, and the body carefully removed to a bed in an adjoining room. But the work was not over. All that long night we sat in the room, all of us from time to time feeling the pulse of the now living man, and at times administering small quantities of stimulant, not only to him but to ourselves. Our patience was well rewarded; every moment the pulse grew stronger and the breath deeper. Several times the man opened his eyes, but, apparently, took no notice of anything. At daybreak, when Judge Warren and I left the place, he was sleeping.'

WHERE IS HIS SOUL?

Dr. Bigelow was asked if the man was still living, and was he getting on nicely.

'Oh, yes; he is living. The experiment I have described to you took place just five days ago. I have only this moment returned from the hospital. The man's wounds are healing and he is able to move about the room.'

'Does he feel all right, and will he be able to go to work again?'

'I am afraid not.' He spoke in a low, doubting tone of voice, which revealed the fact that there was more of the story than Bigelow had related. Pressed to tell the facts of the case, he said:

'Well, the man eats and drinks; seems to be afraid of other people, or more curious than afraid, and he is affected strangely by the heat and cold. But he can neither read nor write; does not know the use of books, plates, or knives and forks. He is not able to talk, but cries out very loudly, or jabs in an inarticulate manner. Once in a while a word can be distinguished, but the man does not appear to perceive any difference between it and his jargon. The animal life has been restored, but not the spiritual. The mind with all its component parts has gone, I fear, never to be restored.'

This is, indeed, a wonderful achievement of science. It may seem too wonderful for belief, but your correspondent can vouch for the great respectability of the persons named. They are gentlemen of high standing, and the proof is irresistible.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy. T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.:—'DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long. I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite cured of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head. A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper. Yours truly, W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister. Port Elgin, Ont., Aug. 24, 1878.
