

Fairfield's Spring Bedding Fair

Today's issue of The Guardian is now advertising Fairfield's Spring Bedding Fair, a notable event. Known far and wide as Canada's blanket and wool products specialists, Fairfield and Sons Limited have come up with an original business that should intrigue all economy-minded housewives.

"Do your bedding by The Fairfield Way" is an oft-recognized slogan for an astonishing organization.

They not only sell new bedding and blankets - they create all new articles from old and worn-out woollen materials as miraculously as a flick of Aladdin's lamp!

The Spring Bedding Fair, which commenced Saturday, April 5, features mainly an interesting and absorbing process; the regeneration of old woollen goods that have been turned into the company!

ALL STERILIZED
First, there comes the sorting of the woollens, then rapid sterilization in a patented steaming and oiling machine. Later the old materials are shredded.

Finally, presto! The new articles are rewoven.

Men and women alike may see this re-creative system at work during the Spring Bedding Fair with their own eyes. All they have to do is visit Fairfield's well-staffed and progressive plant in Preston, Ontario.

It's not easy work, but is done with the utmost care and efficiency, as are all operations at Fairfield's. Before the processing a staff of over 30 women employees sort the old materials into more than 400 different grades and a bright rainbow of colors.

The factory in Preston, now in operation for five years, is one of the most modern woollen mills in Canada.

TREMENDOUS OUTPUT
That factory produces more blankets than any other similar plant in the entire nation. Over 250 people are employed at the various necessary jobs.

Says Mr. L.C. Fairfield, "The durability of wool is quite amazing - it never loses its insulating quality".

That is why wool, unlike other lesser materials and synthetics, can be used again and again after being torn up and rewoven.

Fairfield's is a family enterprise, one with an excellent record in serving Canadians. Today, many of their store-depots are located across the country, the first western plant being established in Winnipeg. There's one in Vancouver, yet another in Edmonton. In the east, they are located in Montreal as well as in Preston.

36th BIRTHDAY
The company, which observes its 36th birthday this year, welcomes all guests to their plants during the coming month. Guided tours and special visits will enable people to see engraving processes of dyeing, napping, carding and spinning. These details have proven interesting to many groups of ladies, who are carefully ushered through Fairfield's by competent aides.

Tours can be arranged at any time by writing the company at their Preston, Ontario, office.

Apart from buying and saving on a long list of fine blanket and bedding products at Fairfield's, the thrifty lady of the house can trade in her family's old woollens and receive a surprising return in actual economy.

An order form appears in Fairfield's advertisement elsewhere in tonight's paper, so now's the time to get a "quick change" done on those old articles.

Central Royalty Boy Scouts Hike

The Central Royalty Scout Troop held their third winter hike of 1958 on Saturday. The theme reading.

being patrol cooking and map reading.

Patrol rations were supplied to the three patrols before departure from the Community Hall at 9.45 the menu consisted of apple juice, cod fillets, potatoes, carrots, peas, apple sauce, bread and hot cocoa.

The patrols were blind-folded and taken by car to different map references approximately 10 miles from town. Each patrol leader was then given a topographical map of area and a set of route instructions which enabled him to lead his patrol to the map reference of the Troop rendezvous. The Beavers had the longest jaunt and arrived in at noon. The first patrol to report in were greeted by ASM M. McLaughlin who had HQ area established and patrol sites allotted.

Preparations began at once for the full course meal by patrols. Some of the new boys were amazed at the outcome, however all ate hearty and needless to say, there were no rations to carry home.

Following the meal, there was a short hike thru the woods with a talk on tree recognition by the A.S.M. The Troop then took part in a few games by S. M. J. Richard, followed by a summary of the days activities.

The boys returned home as a Troop, very tired but looking forward to future hikes when more of the back roads dry up. The following Scouts took part:— P-L W. McAleer, G. Perry, D. Roper, F. Coughlin, J. MacLennan of Fox Patrol; A-P-L D. Richard, E. Dowling, P. MacLennan, B. J. J. Kelly of the Beaver Patrol; P-L M. Campbell, A. Bagnall, J. Campbell, T. Richard, M. Ellis and M. Johnson of the Lion Patrol.
