Strong Ocean-Going Lakers Point To New Development

By JANE BECKER TORONTO (CP) — Two new ocean-going lakers, specially built to withstand winter rigors on the Atlantic, are pointing to a new future for Seaway cargo carriers.

The 18,800-ton Cape Breton Miner and the 20,600-ton Ontario Power, built at Port Weller, Ont., for Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd., are made from thicker, stronger steel than conventional lakers.

Under the proposed system of collective bargaining, said the minister of labor would have to occupy a dual role if Mr. Knowles' suggestion was adopted.

Players Go For High Stakes In B.C. Lumber Speculation

VANCOUVER (CP) — The great lumber speculation game is on in these parts, and players are going for high stakes and running the risk of going broke.

The game goes thus: A player buys a boom of cedar logs at say, $35 to $1,000 board feet. Then he holds it until the market rises, next spring or summer perhaps, and sells it at maybe $50 a 1,000.

You need fresh water to store your booms in, for instance, or teredos — nasty little marine worms that like to eat wood — will gnaw your investment to pieces.

If you choose hemlock as an investment and hold it too long, your logs might sink. And cedar prices might never go up.

Right now, the log market is the worst in 20 years. Prices have dropped sharply, if you can sell logs at all.

The Fraser River is thick with logs. They crowd the estuaries several sections wide.

Wheat Exports High, Flour Markets Slip

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian wheat exports will stay on a high plateau at least until 1970, but there's no end in sight to the decline in wheat flour markets, a federal report said here.

Annual wheat exports, including wheat flour, are expected to run between 475,000,000 and 550,000,000 bushels a year for the next three years.

However, in flour, the report to the federal-provincial agricultural outlook conference looks for a long-term gradual decline in Canadian production.

There is some assurance of continued flour exports to Communist bloc countries through 1969. Giveaway programs also may take more. And domestic consumption may increase slightly with population.

But the significant fact is that Canada will continue to lose its traditional markets in developing countries, which are building their own flour mills. This decline is accentuated by strong competition from subsidized flour exporters in other countries.

FLOUR PRICES UP The falling flour industry worked at 85 per cent of capacity in the 1965-66 crop year, up from 77 per cent the previous year, largely because of Russian orders. Even so, Canadian production to that point had declined 13 per cent from 1962.
