THE DYING BOY.

Farewell, to thee, my mother,
I'm going far away;
I'm going far away;
Farewell my little brother,
I can no longer stay:
I hear my Saviour calling me
To come unto his breast,
I long to leave this world of pain
And seek my final rest.

I'm going where my father
So lately went before,
Oh, lay me down beside him,
And we will part no more.

I long to see my father's face,
And hear his pleasant voice
We shall be happy, mother,
And in Jesus' love rejoice.

Dear mother you have tended me
In sickness and in pain;
I grieve to leave you, but I hope
We soon shall meet again.

I hear the angels singing,
I see my Saviour come;
Oh, let me go, dear mother,
To my eternal home.

A BEGAR.—A nobleman, travelling in Scotland, was asked for alms, in the High Street of Edinburgh, by a little ragged boy; he said he had no change, upon which the boy offered to procure it. His lordship, in order to get rid of his importunity, gave him a piece of silver; which the boy thought was to be changed, and ran off for the purpose. On his return, not finding his benefactor, who he expected would have waited, he watched for several days in the place where he had received the money, pursuing his occupation. At length, the nobleman happening again to pass that way, he accosted him, and put the change he had procured into his hand, counting it with great exactness. His lordship was so pleased with the boy's honesty, that he placed him at school, with an intention to provide for him.

Chrysothos was a striking example of thanksgiving in adversity. For when he was in exile, guarded by fierce soldiers, and hurried by them from place to place, in great bodily weakness, and hourly expecting his death, he ended his last prayer with these words: "Glory be to God for all events!"

"WAGES" IN ENGLAND.—The daily pay of the Duke of Wellington, for doing "nothing hardly," is £118 14s. 6d.; and a woman receives, for manufacturing twelve hundred round headed hob nails, five pence and three farthings! Something of a contrast!

PRETTY GOOD.—A petition from the inmates of a State prison was lately presented, praying that the Tree of Liberty might be planted within the yard each one allowed to cut his stick.

A CURIOSITY.—In Mobile they have a full grown egg-plant bush, bearing in the place of the egg-plant, perfect tomatoes. It is from a garden in the neighborhood, where there are many similar plants.

OXEN.—Let your working oxen be comfortably accommodated with lodgings, and well fed, in order that they may be better enabled to sustain themselves in their toils, and be sure and give them a handful of salt twice a week.

A young lawyer being very assiduous in his attentions to a young lady, a wit observed that he never heard of making love by attorney. "Very true," replied the other, "but you should remember that all Cupid's votaries are solicitors."

A conceited coxcomb once said to a barber's boy, "Did you ever shave a monkey?" "Why, no, sir," replied the boy; "but if you please to sit down, I will try."
