P.E.I. Diocesan WA Board Hears Challenging Address

Celebration of Holy Communion on Tuesday, April 19 at 10 a. m. at St. Peter's Cathedral, Charlottetown. The Rt. Rev. W. W. Davis, DD Bishop of the Diocese of Nova Scotia officiating, opened the 69th annual meeting of the P. E. I. Diocesan Board of the WA. During the service, a WA Diocesan Life Membership was presented to the retiring corresponding secretary, Mrs. Arthur Peake. New officers elected were Mrs. J. R. Davies, as corresponding secretary and Mrs. E. L. Elias, candidate secretary.

Lunch was served by St. Peter's Church women to officers and delegates of the WA and the DCS, who were warmly welcomed by Archdeacon J. R. Davies. A special guest was Canon E. M. Malone, who is this year celebrating the 60th anniversary of his ordination and who will be honored by St. Dunstan's University at its Spring Convocation.

The business session opened at 2 p. m. in St. Paul's Parish Hall with the president, Mrs. H. L. Palmer presiding. The address of welcome to delegates and visitors from other churches was given by Mrs. W. R. Jenkins and fittingly responded to by Margaret Coles.

Mrs. H. L. MacPherson was appointed to attend the 1966 Dominion annual meeting in British Columbia as proxy for the president.

Reports presented by the various secretaries gave a most encouraging picture of the work of the past year. Tribute was paid to three life members of the WA: Margaret Cotton, Mrs.

J. G. Townsend and Mrs. Alexander Campbell who passed away during the year, and the recent passing of Canon J. T. Tibbott was noted with regret.

Tea was served at 5 p. m. by the women of St. Paul's, and the period between meetings gave an opportunity for conference and friendly conversation. There was also time to examine and, if one chose, to purchase some of the beautiful Pakistani embroideries or the interesting and educational books on display.

The guest speaker, Esther W. Kerry, Dominion chairman of the social service department of the WA was welcomed to the evening meeting by Mrs. T. DeBlols. With the changing pattern of living, social service is playing a growing part in WA work. Miss Kerry held the interested attention of her audience as she spoke of the challenge this presents and listed many ways in which this challenge is being met by our churches. "The challenge comes from Christ, who, today comes right where people are, and calls them to new responsibilities, just as once He came to those in whom he saw possibilities for service and said: 'Follow Me! If we have faith in Him and Love for others, we will become alert to the needs of the world about us and opportunities for Social Service will be readily found."

Mrs. L. H. Davison voiced the appreciation of the meeting to Miss Kerry for her inspiring address.

WI Annual Board Meeting Headed By Island Woman

OTTAWA (CP) - A "serious drop in membership" in the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada was reported by National Secretary Mrs. H. C. Taylor of Ottawa at the annual board meeting here Wednesday.

The four-day meeting which ended Wednesday is headed by National President Mrs. J. Philip Matheson of Oyster Bed Bridge, P.E.I. Nine provincial presidents are among the 32 delegates.

Mrs. Taylor blamed the population drift to cities, working mothers, and uninteresting programming for the loss of about 2,500 members in 1965. Only British Columbia showed an increase, bringing national membership in the organization of rural women to 65,000 in 3,330 branches across Canada.

Mrs. Wells Coates of East Angus, Que., urged members to support anti-pollution measures for air, water, and soil; by sending representatives to the council of resource ministers in Montreal next fall.

DESCRIPTED PROJECTS

She also described projects carried out under the Institutes' "making Canada beautiful" centennial scheme. One group from Peace River District had sent packages of soil for flower boxes to the Tuktoyaktuk Women's Institute in the Northwest Territories.

Mrs. George Black, citizenry convener from Pilot Mound, Man., recommended branches sponsor leisure time programs in crafts and personal development. She commended Quebec groups for giving adult French classes and urged branches in other provinces to do the same.

In a report on home economics and health, Mrs. Arthur MacKenzie of Piapot, Sask., said members should pay more attention to physical fitness and recommended "exercises, walks, even dancing."

Others reporting included Mrs. R. J. Moss, Amaranth, Man., and Mrs. William Thompson, Souris, Man. and Mrs. J. O. Decker, Pemberton, B.C.

National executive members presiding at the meetings included vice-presidents Mrs. George Clarke, St. John's, Nfld., Mrs. Keith Mosher, Upper Musquodoboit, N.S., and Mrs. M. G. Roberts, Drumheller, Alta.

MARY HAWORTH Visits To See Grandson Denied By Son's Wife

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When my son's marriage broke up, in the most unpleasant circumstances, I not only sided with him, but openly blamed and condemned his wife, I am ashamed to say.

In consequence she has refused absolutely to let any of us see her son, my grandson. Meanwhile my son has left this part of the country to work on the West Coast.

Whatever differences existed before, she always allowed us to enjoy the child's love and companionship without restriction. But I never realized how much he meant to us until he was taken from us.

Night and day, there is hardly a moment when I am not aching with longing to see and hold him again. I have tried several times to contact her, but she refuses to see or talk with us.

How, then, can I rectify my mistake and apologize?

Is there any legal way I can get visitation rights, even though she would be against it?

Sincerely, L. S.

DEAR L. S.: As I get the picture, your daughter-in-law was granted sole custody of her son when the marriage broke up. And on this foundation of guardianship she rests her authority in refusing to let any of his father's folks have access to him. It is also my impression that you probably were a mom-type mother and mother-in-law, evaluating your son's wife as an upstart rival for his affectional allegiance, which you felt should be yours primarily. And on that wretched basis of emotional immaturity, you probably fought her, insecurely, for possession of him.

Thus when their marriage collapsed, you probably felt, momentarily, that victory and vindication of sorts were coming your way. And in that spirit you sided militantly with your son, meanwhile aggressively denouncing his wife. As if to trample her in the dust.

Against that background it is understandable that she would see fit to wash her hands of the lot of you, not necessarily in a mood of anger or vindictiveness. But, rather, to try if possible to shield her young son from the psychologically sick influence on your side of the fence that "undid" her marriage, and smeared her reputation in a time of crisis.

As for what steps you might take, to break down the visita-

ELLEN'S DIARY

Treasures Were Assembled In Our Own Family Room

This afternoon when the sun commenced to claim its work of cover, the other queried. That was the gift of a lady of a manse to us in an early school year. She had come with her husband from Scotland to this Canadian Province, strangers set down to strange scenes and customs. He was "The Minister", a bit reserved, set apart by his calling in those days, garbed always in his clerical black. She was a warm-hearted woman, kindly, the mother of seven children, including to us, wondrous twin girls. "It's to hold your dreams" she said. "House-cleaning is interesting work, isn't it?" Alex smiled. "Tell us some more about everything" Peter beamed. "I like it!"

And all the time the sun edged nearer to the west, turning the room to gold. As we cleaned the larger window which looks up the valley, the shadows of the trees along the stream lengthened. We must get on with the cleaning lest James, busy man that he is would come in from the fencing, to find (Shame on us, in our more or less idling!) the table unspread.

First fencing - that was the afternoon's fieldwork. Righting a fence about fields close by the barns and yards where the ewes wintered. There "any day now" as the farmers said, "some of the cow-king" will be turned to range, given supplementary feed, and shelter.

And today? As Peter remarked with a happy smile when the dusk was taking him home. "This has been one great day, hasn't it? We got a lot of work done!"

Until tomorrow - - - Diary - - - Good-night.

MRS. DAVID CAMPBELL Longtime Resident Observes 89th Birthday At Alberton

Mrs. David Campbell of Alberton celebrated her 89th birthday on Saturday, April 16. The former Eliza Hardy, she was born in Montrose and lived most of her life there and in Alberton.

Members of her family who live in the province spent some time with her during the weekend and there was a small family party Saturday evening. There were two birthday cakes for the occasion - one made by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Victor Campbell and the other by her companion and lifelong housekeeper, Mrs. Thomas Skerry.

Mrs. Campbell received flowers from her oldest son, Eldridge, who is holidaying in Florida, also numerous gifts and cards, one of them from a childhood playmate and lifelong friend, Mrs. John Dorgan (Winey Fitzsimmons) of Tignish, who is the same age.

Mrs. Campbell has 10 children: 20 cleaned young onions (scallions) with 3" of the tops
1/2 tsp. salt
Water
6 crushed slices hot enriched bread toast, buttered
2 e. white or cream sauce (medium-thick)
Paprika for garnish
Put onions in 1-qt. saucepan. Add salt, and water to depth of 2". Cover. Slow-boil 20 min. or until onions are fork-tender; drain. Arrange 5 of cooked onions atop each slice of buttered toast. Spoon over cream sauce and dust with paprika.

CASSEROLED HAM SLICES ON MASHED SWEET POTATO
6 (1/2") rounds sliced smoked ham (halved)
4 c. mashed sweet potato
1 c. cranberry-orange relish
1 tsp. butter or margarine
Put ham slices in baking pan. Add 3 tsp. hot water to keep ham from sticking. Cover; bake 10 min. in 350 degrees F. oven.
Meantime, spread mashed sweet potato into broad, low oven casserole. Overlap sweet potato with ham slices. Spread ham lightly with the cranberry-orange relish; dot with butter. Bake 20 min. at mod. heat, 350 degrees F., or until sweet potato and ham are lightly browned.

MASHED SWEET POTATO
2 lb. sweet potatoes or yams, boiled and mashed
3 tsp. butter or margarine
3 tsp. hot milk
1 tsp. seasoned salt
Combine ingredients and whip with wire whisk or electric mixer until light and fluffy. Serve "as is," or as basis for ham slices.

IDA BAILEY ALLEN Light Tapioca Desserts Chosen To Balance Meal

"Should I omit dessert?" is an often asked question. Most dinners, and luncheons, need a well-chosen dessert to lend that luxury touch without which many a meal would seem disappointing. But the choice of the dessert is important.

For instance, when the main course is budgetwise and does not contain quite as much meat as usual, the amount of protein needed to balance the meal can be added by a custard type dessert, containing milk and eggs (both have protein foods), used in making the following Peach Tapioca California:

Measurements level; recipes for 6 PEACH TAPIOCA CALIFORNIA
1 large (20 oz.) can California cling peaches
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1-3 c. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
3 tsp. quick-cooking tapioca
2 c. milk
1/4 tsp. vanilla
2 tsp. lemon juice
6 spriglets fresh mint
Preliminary: Open can of peaches and drain off syrup. Measure 1/4 cupful. Measure out 1/4 c. of sliced peaches, and also set aside 12 slices to use as a garnish when serving.

To Put the Dessert Together: In a heavy saucepan, combine and mix together peach syrup, eggs, sugar, salt, tapioca and milk. Let stand 5 min., then cook-stir over medium heat until mixture comes just to boil and is slightly thickened. Remove lemon juice. Turn into 3-pt. bowl to cool. Fold in 1/4 c. reserved sliced peaches.

Refrigerate 2 hr. or until heaping spoonful will almost hold its shape. Spoon into sherbet glasses. Chill. Garnish: 2 reserved slices peach and a spriglet of mint.
