

The Liberal Conservative Room is in the store lately occupied by Mr. George R. Strong, in J. D. McLeod's building, Queen St. Committee Room will be open every day and evening during the Campaign.

Local and Other items.

We regret to learn that Mr. Justice Peters is still seriously ill. FENTON T. NEWBERRY, Esq., returned from a business trip to the Upper Provinces and the United States last evening. AFTER the Carnival on Thursday night next there will be a quadrille party in Scott's Hall. A committee of skaters have the matter in hand. ROUGH-ON-BATS seems just now to be a good deal rougher on men and women. It is getting to be the great popular remedy for a weasy life.

ONE trunk occupied the guest chamber in the Police Station last night. He was hailed on this morning and is billed to appear at the Stipendiary Magistrate's review on Monday forenoon.

THE Georgetown-Pictou mail route has been abandoned, and the mails ordered to go via Cape Traverse. The first mail and passenger train will leave here for the Cape at 12.05 a. m. on Monday.

A REPORTER in Biddeford, Me., has been interviewing two lady clerks in that city, whom he styles "yard-stick goddesses," on the subject of stockings, and uses up nearly a column of space in telling about it.

WHILE a number of boys were coasting in Somerville, Mass., Saturday afternoon last, a double runner, loaded with lads, collided with a heavy team. One of the boys was instantly killed and another seriously injured.

AN exchange tells of "a Nebraska man who was carried 40 miles by a cyclone and dropped in a widow's front yard. He married the widow and returned home worth about $30,000 more than when he started." It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.

WE are requested to announce that the public are invited to attend the opening of Mr. Ross' Adult Singing Class this (Saturday) evening, at 8 o'clock, in J. D. McLeod's Hall (up stairs). Tickets will be furnished to those who will join the class.

W. W. WELLNER will commence his great clearance sale on Tuesday next, to continue for six weeks. Big discounts will be given for cash, to clear out his large stock of goods to save the trouble of packing them up while enlarging and refitting his store.

FOR the information of parties who intend "doing" the Montreal carnival, we may say that the Intercolonial Railway will issue return tickets at one first class fare from stations on that road to Montreal, on the 3rd, 4th, 5th and 7th of February, good to return, leaving Montreal not later than the night of the 18th February.

THE livery man referred to in THE EXAMINER yesterday denies that he was waiting for a race at stated, and says that he is ready to make a match at once for even a larger sum than $100. The hotel-man says he did call upon him, but could not get a satisfactory answer. However, as both appear to want a race there should be no difficulty about arranging one.

THE Carnival in the Excelsior Rink on Thursday evening next promises to be the largest and best ever held in the city. The rink will be decorated with bunting, etc., and will be illuminated with new and nobby designs in Chinese lanterns. An immense number of skaters have signified their intention to participate in the festivities. Summerside, Georgetown, Montague, Crapaud and other places will be represented, and many new features will be introduced. Two minstrel troupes, with new songs and jokes, will dispense merriment with unsparring hand. Brudner Gardiner and a contingent from his Lime Kiln Club will be present and hold a session on the ice. At half-past ten o'clock two trick ponies from Hindpaugh's Circus, driven by fantastically attired clowns will enter the arena and go through some evolutions calculated to mystify the spectators. The Band of the 82nd Battalion will furnish the music in its usual good style. All who desire a good evening's amusement should make a point of attending.

Supreme Court. JANUARY 28. Louis H. Davies and another vs. Michael Cunningham—Action for money lent. Verdict for defendant. Edward Thibedeau vs. John McDonald.—Action of ejectment. The jury found a verdict for the defendant in this case after three hours deliberation. Peters & Warburton for plaintiff; McLean & McDonald for defendant.

JANUARY 29. Juan Macaldo, the Spaniard who was tried this term for stabbing the second mate of the Ida Mand, with intent to murder, and found guilty after a lengthy trial—the first jury not being able to agree upon which count of the indictment to find the prisoner guilty—was sentenced this morning to six years imprisonment in the penitentiary provided for persons convicted of crime in this Province.

Before passing sentence Mr. Justice Hensley addressed a few words to the prisoner. He told him that he had committed a serious crime, and had after a fair trial, been convicted by a British jury; that though the fact of his being a Spaniard, and naturally of a quicker temper, was pleaded by his counsel as an excuse for his crime, yet in the Courts of Her Majesty justice must be administered to all alike. He should be thankful that the skill of the physician had saved him from being tried for a more serious crime.

In the case of the Queen on pro of David Small vs. Owen Smith and Joseph Dunn, the Court pronounced sentence that they should be imprisoned for three calendar months in the common jail. These boys were indicted for housebreaking and larceny, and they pleaded guilty to the larceny, and were for this offence punished.

The Court adjourned till 11 o'clock, on Thursday, 7th February, when the appeals and special papers, and motions for nonsuit or new trial will be heard.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

(SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.)

BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

Parliamentary Disclosures.

LONDON, Jan. 28. The interest of the House centered in a letter in which Lord Salisbury accepted Lord Randolph's resignation. It was dated 22nd December. Salisbury said: "The outlook on the Continent is so very black that it is not too much to say that the chances are in favor of war at an early date. When once it has broken out, we will not be secure from being involved. Therefore we cannot accept the responsibility of refusing supplies which the war and navy Ministers have declared necessary." When this part of the letter was read, the House rang with approving cheers. Salisbury's pacific declarations which were given at the same moment in the House of Lords were designed to check any alarm that might be caused by the disclosures in the Commons. On the whole, the Government is thought to have come well out of the incident.

Terrible Experience at Sea.

HULLFAX, Jan. 29. The story of the survivors of the schooner Charles Graham, is one of the most extraordinary romances of the sea ever known in this part of the world. On Tuesday night word was received that the schooner C. Graham had been dashed to pieces and all on board lost. This morning, however, tidings were received that they were saved but one of the crew. The unfortunate man was Captain Coleridge. Three of the crew arrived to-night. They tell the following story:—"We left Burnside January, 15, and made Cape Sable light on the 23rd. On the 24th, at 8 p. m., we struck a rock. We got off, and at 10 o'clock struck again. At this time the wind was blowing a hurricane, and the sea running mountains high. We immediately set to work cutting down the foremast, hoping that it would rest against the rock, which was about 80 feet high. At this time the captain went aft and no one saw him again. In falling the mast the mate and a seaman were severely injured. Each man climbed up the mast to a table in the rock. They found they were on what is known as Dover Castle, without food or shelter. Mate Watt gave up three times, closing his eyes for death. His shipmates cheered him and kept him moving enough to keep life in him. At 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, after 36 hours on the island, they were found; and, with the aid of lines and buoys, they were taken ashore and given shelter and food—not having eaten anything since Monday night.

The Fisheries Dispute.

LONDON, Jan. 28. The subject of dispute between the United States and Great Britain, in regard to the Canadian fisheries, was brought up in the House of Commons this afternoon. Sir James Ferguson, in answer to inquiries, said the Government had been conferring with the Government of the United States on the question. The Canadian fisheries, he said, were very valuable, and the Government had followed the policy concerning them which had been adopted by the preceding Government, and would maintain the rights of colonists with every desire to conciliate the United States.

The Queen's Speech.

LONDON, Jan. 28. The Post this morning referring to the Queen's speech says: "The speech again exhibits a lamentable proof of the Government's want of touch with the country, lack of guidance of party, and failure in command. It was a sad error to expose Mr. Goschen to defeat in Liverpool when a safe seat might have been found for him." The Post thinks that the sacrifice of Lord Randolph Churchill might have been avoided, and says it is idle to conceal the fact that the session opens under unhappy auspices.

The Grit Goose Cooked in Albert.

MONCTON, N. B., Jan. 28. Dr. Weldon and Mr. Wallace, the late member for Albert, met a number of friends at Hillsborough to-day, and it was agreed cordially that all should work harmoniously for Weldon, to whom Mr. Wallace and friends have pledged their warm support. This destroys the last vestige of hope of the Grits in Albert.

Rum Did It.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. Catherine Murphy, aged 20, was found dead in her room to-day. Her babe was lying alongside of the corpse nearly starved. The husband and father was in an adjoining room drunk. The woman bore some terrible cuts, which plainly indicated a brutal murder.

Quebec Legislature.

QUEBEC, Jan. 28. The Legislative Assembly met this forenoon, and Mr. Taillon moved an adjournment till the 2nd February, which was carried.

Great Strike.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. Judging from the present indications, 50,000 longshoremen, coal handlers, etc., will be out on strike to-morrow.

Weather Bulletin.

TORONTO, January 29—10 a. m. Fresh south and southwest winds, generally cloudy, mild weather with local rains.

DIED.

Dominion Issues Discussed.

HOW THE OLD LIBERALS REASON TOGETHER.

According to promise Robert called upon his friend on the following evening:— ROBERT—"Well neighbor, here I am according to promise; and let us go to work and talk these politics over in a reasonable way. But stop, where did you get that big pile of books you have heaped up there?" JAMES—"O these are Mr. Blake's and Mr. Davies' speeches in the House of Commons. Do you know Davies sends me piles of them. There was such a lot come one day that my soon Bill had to leave them at the office and come after the horse to take them home, and the half of them are not here now as the old woman said they were my trash, and told Aennie to light the fire with them."

ROBERT—"Did you read them all?" JAMES—"Well, no; I tried to, but they are mighty long and dry, and hard to understand. There is one long speech of Blake's knocks me altogether. It is all about a shirt. He says that every man that buys a white shirt pays fifty cents in duty. Well, the old woman was in town the other day and she bought cotton to make two shirts for me and one a piece for the boys, and it only cost at the rate of 40 cents a piece altogether, duty and all. Now that is what puzzles me. The old woman says that Blake's speech is all humbug. But you know her father was a Tory and I am afraid that she is one too."

ROBERT—"I read that great speech of Blake's myself and my wife had the same experience as yours. I do not think that Blake himself could explain that speech. I am sure I am not able; I am afraid he is one of those that darken Council with words."

JAMES—"There is another speech of Blake's here that bothers me. It was made at a meeting in Ontario, and he says that Ontario paid the whole cost of the Pacific Railway, and that the Provinces didn't pay anything towards it. Now, I was in town at the meeting the other night and didn't Davies sock it to the Tories for what we have to pay on this Island for building that road. He said every man's farm on the Island was mortgaged to the amount of thousands of dollars to pay for it. Now I would like to know who is telling the truth, Davies or Blake?"

ROBERT—"Do you know I begin to think that neither of them are telling the truth—and they know it. The worst thing they ever did for themselves was to make so many of them speeches and have them printed and sent round. Don't you recollect how they nearly frightened the life out of us in 1878, about how we were to be taxed. Didn't they say that machines and flour, and salt, kerosene oil, and cotton, and cloth, and sugar, and nails, and shoes, and stoves were to be doubled in price, and do you mind the row there was about how dear the children's candy was to be? Now, you know well enough that all these things are cheaper than ever they were before, and it we do pay a little tax on them we don't feel it. Besides, tea, which we use a lot of, is now free, and they made us pay six cents on every pound we used then. When they were in power we paid taxes on our farms that we cleared out of the green woods, and paid high for everything we used. This Party took the tax off and Sir John's Government are paying us a-half a million dollars they owed us to keep us clear of taxes. I used to hate Ferguson; but I tell you he deserves credit for the way he worked for us, and I intend to vote for him and Campbell, too. I have been fooled long enough."

JAMES—"I am afraid you are going to be a turn-coat, and that is what I never expected to see you."

ROBERT—"Well James, it is hard to go against ones party. But the Scriptures has a curse for lying prophets that deceive the people and I do not think that when we know that they prophesied lies in the past that we should follow them any longer."

JAMES—"Well I won't turn yet anyhow. Davies is going to do a good thing now if he never did before. He is going to put a Lebesite on the Scott Act."

ROBERT—"I don't know what that is, and it may be a very good thing, but I wish he had explained it for us country folks. For I find it something like Blake's story about the shirt, very hard to understand. But I can't stay any longer to-night; come to my place to-morrow night and perhaps we will find out what it is."

A Sensible View.

The Philadelphia Record takes a sensible view of the recent proceedings in the United States Congress with regard to the fisheries question. It points out that the New England fishermen are seeking to force Canada into giving them all the privileges of the former reciprocity treaty, while they at the same time retain all the advantages that accrued to them from its abrogation. It says that the Edmunds bill to terminate commercial intercourse between the two countries would do quite as much harm to the United States as to Canada, and that the fishermen of the former would gain nothing by their country's certain loss. It very properly claims also that the people of the United States cannot afford to lose for the sake of inaugurating a war of trade reprisals in order to sustain doubtful pretensions. This is a common-sense view of the matter, and ought to commend itself to those of our neighbors who are inclined to deal with it in a reasonable way.

Grand Success.

No man nor party, says the Montreal Gazette, ever brought its plans and policy to grander success than has Sir John and the Liberal-Conservative party. The aim was to unite all the provinces of this Dominion by unbroken rail, and form the bonds which grow from intercourse and commercial exchange to construct a trunk line from which there would be an outgrowth of branches and subsidiary lines. To open up for settlement the great Northwest, to quicken the wheels of industry in the older provinces in supplying the markets of the newer, and to gladden the heart of the farmer by giving him more customers. This has been done, and when the last link shortening the distance to Halifax and St. John is completed, as it will be this autumn, and when fast lines of steamers shall connect us on one side with Europe and on the other with the Far East, the work will be perfected.
